101 Farms In 100 Days Preserved In Pennsylvania, Meets Gov. Ridge Timetable

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) - "Momentous meeting!" "Milestone."

Thus Samuel Hayes Jr., Pennsylvania's secretary of agriculture, described the preservation of more than 100 farms in 100 days before Earth Day next Saturday. Gov. Tom Ridge announced the "Growing Greener" program at the Pennsylvania Farm Show in January.

The reached goal came on Thursday at the regular meeting of the Pennsylvania Agricultural Land Preservation Board held in the PDA building. Here 34 farms were approved to raises the total to 101 farms perserved in the designated time period.

"I am pleased with the hard work and dedication of the members of the state agricultural land preservation board and the county farmland preservation boards throughout the state who worked hand-in-hand with our state's farm community to reach our goal," Hayes said. "Since January, we have invested nearly $23 million to help preserve these farms from the development that endangers our agricultural economy and encroaches on the quality of life of these and future generations of farm families."

At the farm show, Gov. Ridge called the loss of open space and farmland Pennsylvania's biggest environmental challenge in the new century.

"As Pennsylvanians, we are proud to be part of our nation's breadbasket," Gov. Ridge said.

Jeff and Lisa Bender, Norlina, N.C., were named Maryland and Virginia Milk Cooperative's 2000 Outstanding Young Cooperators. Together, with the help of their son, Jacob, they milk 245 cows and manage 400 acres of crops. The Benders were recognized at the cooperative's annual meeting in March. I believe in the future of agriculture, with a faith born not of words but of deeds - achievements won by the present and past generations of agriculturists...

Showing livestock is going to be a lot more fun for these 4-H'ers, from left, Chad Menges, Matt Bankert, and Cory Thompson. They are among the guests who gathered at the ribbon-cutting ceremony for the York 4-H Center's livestock exhibition facility. The $286,000 building was funded largely by volunteer labor and donations of materials and cash. See page B16 for the story and photos by Joyce Bupp.

Joint Venture's Ultimate Goal Is To Lower Costs To DHIA Members

JAYNE SEBRIGHT

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association (PA DHIA) and Dairy One based in New York have joined together to improve milk production record management in other countries while improving profits for local DHIA members.

The joint venture involves creating an international service company called Ag Star Technologies, focused on delivering American-style dairy herd management systems around the globe. The company will be owned 50/50 by the two organizations.

"Most of the current milk record management programs internationally are administered on huge, high-cost mainframe computers," said David Slusser, Pennsylvania DHIA general manager. "Through AgStar, we can provide these foreign countries with PC-based software, which is a lot more cost effective than the traditional programs running on mainframe computers."

AgStar is marketing the dairy herd record processing software currently used by the Pennsylvania DHIA and Dairy One to these other countries. Along with the processing software, the company will provide on-farm dairy herd management software and seminars on how to manage the software.

"What we're offering to these countries is very similar to what we're doing locally with our management software and George Cudoc's seminars," said Slusser.

According to Pennsylvania DHIA President Norm Hershey, AgStar presents an enormous opportunity for the Northeast dairy industry to provide information services and technologies to agriculture's global marketplace.

"By joining forces with Dairy One, we can bring the expertise and resources of both organizations together to create an industry-leading service provider around the world," said Hershey.

AgStar has already negotiated projects in Poland, Latvia (one of the Baltic states), and Canada. The company is also exploring opportunities with other countries in Europe and South America.

The Poland project has started, with around 40 herds signed up on a test pilot. Based on the test pilot, AgStar is hoping to win the bid to process all of Poland's milk records for their 370,000 cows. To create a

Penn State Council Visits Ag High School In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA-Heralded as "a truly enlightening and informative session," the Penn State Ag Council held its regular bi-annual meeting at the W. B. Saul High School in the city of Philadelphia last week. The meeting is most often held in State College. But for this meeting, the attraction at Saul was the uniqueness of the vocational ag science school within the city limits and a part of the Philadelphia city public school system.

To educate city youth in the ways of agriculture they milk 21 cows, have an equine program, a meat processing plant, swine and sheep herds, a turf grass program, a horticulture department that includes a greenhouse and floral design program, a poultry flock, and a farm mechanics program. Every one of

N.Y./Phila. Frozen Eggs

ATLANTA, GA.
APRIL 07, 2000

EASTERN REGION FROZEN EGGS, APRIL 07, 2000. FEDERAL-STATE

Majority prices were unchanged on truck lot trading when compared to last week's values. Demand remain light and usually unaggressive for sufficient offerings. The undertone was mixed but geneally steady on whites and whole, and cautious on yolks. Liquid and frozen eggs (ingredients included) processed under federal inspection in the Eastern region for the week ending April 01, 2000 were 5 % more than last week, and 6 % more than a year ago. Shell egg suppliers were usually adequate for needs.

National Grain Market

St. Joseph, MO
Wed Apr 12, 2000

USDA-MO Dept Ag Market News

Daily National Grain Market Summary

Good gains were seen in grain and soybean bids, today, with some support stemming from drier weather forecasts over the next several days in the Midwest as well as traders concerns over possible frost damage in winter wheat areas. Wheat 1 to 3 cents higher. Corn 2 to 4 cents higher. Sorghum 4 cents higher. Soybeans 8 to 10 cents higher.

Low overnight temperatures the past week in Kansas, Colorado, and Texas spurred concerns that parts of the winter wheat crop could have sustained damage. Crop condition ratings have been good many places due to recent moisture but some areas were missed and freeze damage is possible in places. Reports that Tunisia bought 6 million bushels of optional origin wheat with high odds that it will end up being EU origin also added strength to wheat. There have been some reports also that some Chinese wheat areas are having drought problems with extremely low water levels at a couple of major dams. Slight declines in corn bids were due to forecasts returning to drier conditions next week More moisture is still needed to refill subsoil moisture. Slow export demand this week is limiting gains for all commodities

Soybean bids were sharply higher in reaction to firmer meal and corn bids. Fund buying was fairly active on the Board today as USDA reduced ending stock estimates for soybeans yesterday.

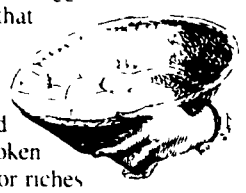
The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

APRIL 17-23, 2000

EASTER, APRIL 23.

FULL EGG MOON

Easter comes just after the Full Egg Moon (April 18) this week We celebrate the Christian Resurrection, the return of spring, and the promise of new chicks all with the little egg, a powerful symbol of life Native Americans and Europeans used eggs in their healing rites and divinations, passing a raw egg in its shell over the body of a patient, in hopes that the egg would absorb the ills The egg was broken open and examined to reveal the nature of the sickness so a cure could be established In dreams, unbroken eggs foretell good luck, fertility, or riches (especially if seen by the basketful), but a broken egg signals a quarrel



Oh who that ever lived and loved,
Can ever look upon an egg unmoved?

-Clarence Day

TIP OF THE WEEK

For best flavor, briefly toast pine nuts (in a hot skillet or 350°F oven) before using in a recipe.

MINTED LAMB CHOPS

1 cup fresh mint leaves, packed
1/4 cup fresh parsley
1 tablespoon fresh basil leaves
3 cloves garlic
1/4 cup pine nuts
1/2 cup virgin olive oil
1/3 cup grated Parmesan
salt and pepper, to taste

2 teaspoons virgin olive oil
4 lamb chops (4 ounces each), trimmed
salt and pepper, to taste

Make a pesto of the first 8 ingredients, pulsing in a blender until well mixed Heat the 2 teaspoons of olive oil in a skillet and saute the lamb chops over medium heat until just barely pink inside Season with salt and pepper, top with pesto, and serve at once

Makes 4 (small) servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Kill a beetle and it will rain.

April weather, rain and sunshine, both together.

When the stars begin to huddle, the earth will soon become a puddle.

OPINION

Grazing Helps Milk Reduce Cancer

There is a new reason why it may be beneficial to allow cows to graze on pasture. According to the national ag research service that reason involves a compound called conjugated linoleic acid (CLA).

CLA is a fatty acid found in beef and dairy fats. Scientific interest in CLA was stimulated about 12 years ago when a University of Wisconsin researcher discovered its cancer-fighting properties in a study of rats fed fried hamburger. CLA cannot be produced by the human body, but it can be obtained through foods such as whole milk, butter, beef, and lamb.

"The interesting thing is that dairy cattle that graze produce higher amounts of CLA in their milk than those which receive conserved feed, such as grain, hay, and silage," says ARS daily scientist Larry Satter. This is true even when the nongrazers eat pasture grass conserved as hay.

Satter, who is based at the Dairy Forage Research Center in Madison, Wisconsin, conducted a study comparing the amount of CLA in milk from cows grazing on pasture to the amount from cows fed hay or silage. His findings: Pasture-grazed cows had five times more CLA in their milk than those fed silage.

Do dairy producers need to graze cows to get them to produce more CLA? "Not necessarily," says Satter. Instead, he devised a way to nudge the production of CLA by dairy cows fed typical confinement diets. He added extracted whole soybean and linseed oils to the corn-alfalfa diet. Then added oils boosted CLA content in the cows' milk to equal the levels obtained from grazing.

ARS and the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation (WARF) subsequently patented the method to increase CLA in cows' milk. The patent, issued in the spring of 1999, was based on a study conducted by Satter and his University of Wisconsin colleagues.

"Animal fats have been criticized for years, but now the potential benefits of CLA in milk and meat from ruminant animals is being seriously studied. Milk fat is one of the riches natural sources of CLA. If human trials show the same benefits as studies with laboratory animals, the benefit of consuming milk products could improve the economics of dairy producers everywhere," says Satter.

To Improve Business Skills

The past two weeks I have participated in three administrative seminars. They all had several common themes. First, administration is an evolving art and science. You need to be constantly changing and improving your administrative style. The consumer and society are forcing these changes. There are two components of administration. They are leadership and management. You lead people and manage things. As an administrator you need to have balance between the two. There is a shift from managing people like equipment to developing people to achieve their maximum potential. The autocratic style of management is being replaced with delegation and allowing the employee to make choices. By delegating, you free yourself from having to tell employees what to do and having employees waiting to be told what to do. This allows the employees to continue their growth and development. As farm businesses continue to grow, farmers need to sharpen their administrative skills. The same principles apply for family or hired labor.

To Look At The 7 Habits of Effective People

If you are looking to grow your business and want to stay competitive in today's business environment, I strongly recommend you read The 7 Habits of Highly Effective People by Stephen Covey. In this book Covey describes 7 habits you need to have a happy and productive life. They are the keys in staying competitive.

The 7 habits are 1. Be proactive. Take responsibility and use initiative. 2. Begin with the end in mind. Know your purpose and have values. 3. Put first things first. Concentrate on the important things and let go of the unimportant. 4. Think win/win. Have mutual respect for other people. 5. Seek first to understand, then to be understood. This develops mutual understanding. 6. Synergize The result of creative cooperation and 7. Sharpen the saw. Continue to learn and renew yourself.

By following these 7 habits, you should be able to achieve balance in your life between family, church, work and community service and develop a business that is a pleasant place to work while staying competitive.

To Develop A Vision

One of the functions of leadership is to have a vision on where you are going and communicating it to others. This week I was at a committee meeting hosted by one of the county's leading agribusiness companies.

Two of the top company executives addresses the committee and shared their views on the future of agriculture in the region and the vision for their company. To achieve their vision they have developed four initiatives for their company. They are 1. Learning Initiative. Need to thrive on learning 2. Quality Initiative Need to embrace quality in all that we do. 3. Food Supply Chain Initiative. Need to bring success to the entire food chain. and 4. Environmental Initiative. Good stewardship is a commitment. In addition, they believe, as a business you will continue to expand to take advantage size can give you. At the same time you must strive to capture the best of a small business. Its energy, flexibility, excitement and speed. You must continue to distance yourself from the rest of the competition. You must help your customers or buyers of your products to distance themselves from their competition, for their growth and prosperity will dictate yours.

FINDING THE BODY OF CHRIST

April 16, 2000

Background Scripture:
1 Corinthians 12:1-30.
Devotional Reading:
Romans 12:1-8

Empty! The tomb in Joseph of Arimathea's garden was empty. The body of Jesus of Nazareth was missing. Although the majority of his followers believed that they encountered the resurrected Christ in the days following his crucifixion, some people have continued to search for his body ever since. Every once in a while someone claims to find clues that will lead to the "burial place of the unresurrected Jesus." They are still looking.

Scholars argue whether the resurrected Christ was a physical body, a metaphysical manifestation or a vision. When Paul tells us that the resurrected body is similar to but different than the physical body (1 Cor. 15), there is even more uncertainty as to just how the risen Christ appeared to his disciples and continues to appear to us today.

I can't solve that problem–no one can, really–but we don't have to look for the physical body of Christ, for Paul has told us where to find it! Now you are the body of Christ and individually members of it" (12:27). Ah yes, you say, but that's just an analogy. You are comparing the Church and its members to the physical body of Christ. Some time ago. However I came upon a commentary on this text by the late biblical scholar, Clarence Tucker Craig: "He (Paul) does not mean to say that the church is like a body; it is the body of Christ".

Christ In Me!

In Galatians 2:20, Paul says, "It is no longer I who live, but Christ who lives in me." Christ lives in each of us by the Holy Spirit and thus the physical presence of Jesus Christ in our world is accounted for by our physical bodies, minds and spirits. This concept of the Church as the body of Christ with us as parts ("members") of that body is an analogy, but it is also much more than that It is more than a metaphysical presence, it is really a physical presence. Annie Johnson Flint expresses it poetically:

Christ has no hands but our hands
To do his work today;
He has no feet but out feet
*to lead men in his way;

In Frances R. Havergal's familiar hymn, we sing:

Take my voice and let me sing
Always, only for my King.
Take my lips and let them be
*Filled with messages from thee."

The Same Spirit

I would not say that Christ is limited to working in and through us, but I would not deny either that the hands, the feet, the voices, the hearts, the minds through which great numbers of people are ministered to are those that we make available to him. And that which empowers us to be the Body of Christ in the world is the same Spirit (six times in this passage Paul uses the term, "same spirit," and four times "the one spirit").

So each one of us is gifted by the same Spirit Yet, being "gifted" means nothing unless we respond to that Spirit and use the gift or gifts given us. The power of the gift comes from God but you and I must make some effort to use the gift. These gifts are not for us to enjoy, but to employ for others, as Paul says, for "the common good" (v.7). Neither are these gifts given to divide us, but to unite us in a realization that we all need one another. "If one member suffers, all suffer together; if one member is honored, all rejoice together" (v.26). The world will not have to search for the body of Christ when it witnesses Christians living and working together in that kind of unity

Incurable Viral Disease Detected In Group Of Horses

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) – Equine infectious anemia (EIA), an incurable infectious viral disease of horses, has been identified as the disease affecting 21 horses in Pennsylvania's Wayne County.

A veterinarian in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences urges all horse owners and horse boarders to test their stock for this disease

"This disease has been with us a long time," said David Griswold, research associate in veterinary science. "Infected horses are detected in Pennsylvania every year, but seldom in such a concentrated grouping."

The outbreak originated at two Wayne County farms that provide riding horses for various summer camps in the area. Eighteen of the 21 horses in those herds that tested positive for the disease have been destroyed. Three other horses are quarantined. However, not all the horses that may have been exposed to EIA have been accounted for.

Horses infected by EIA can be identified by using the Coggins test, a blood test that identifies the antibodies that form to fight the virus. Those that test positive can be euthanized or quarantined. "A quarantined horse must be held in a screened-in pen at least 200 yards away from other horses," Griswold said.

"It takes from two weeks to a month from the time the horse is infected to form enough antibodies to give a positive test result, so owners may have to test more than once if a horse shows any symptoms," Griswold said.

Symptoms of the disease are:

•Depression. The horse may seem lethargic and not eat well.

•High fever.

•The mucus membranes may turn yellow.

•At times there may be swelling in the legs and brisket.

About a third of the horses with the disease will die within a month of infection. Another third will experience chronic symptoms off and on, and can linger up to one year before dying. Some horses will show no symptoms at all, which makes testing all the more important, Griswold said.

The disease is transmitted by blood transfer from one horse to another. "Biting insects, particularly horseflies and mosquitoes, are the main vector of the infection," Griswold said. "The prime time for infection is in the warmer months when insect activity is common."

Griswold lists some management tips for horse owners:

•Before buying any horse, insist on a negative Coggins test result within the last 30 days.

•Diligently remove manure and use insect repellents to control flies.

Venture's Ultimate Goal

user-friendly program for Poland, AgStar has translated both the Barn Owl program and the milk record reports to Polish.

"This AgStar venture could bring a lot of profits into the parent companies," said Slusser. "This will lower the costs of developing new software and improve profits for our members by lowering fees."

AgStar Technologies will be led by a Board of Directors made up of farmers representing both Pennsylvania DHIA and Dairy One. Representing Pennsylvania DHIA are Norman Hershey of Gordonville, William Itle of Loretto, Dale Hoover of Lebanon, and Adam Derr of Dawson. Dairy One named Keith Whittaker of Whitney Point, NY; Peter Jacquier of East Canaan, CT; Clyde Rutherford of Otego, NY; and William Cook of Aurora, NY, as its representatives on the board.

In addition to the international venture, Pennsylvania DHIA and Dairy One are also determining ways they can work together locally.

"We're not merging, but we are going to partner with each other to save costs wherever we can," said Slusser. Some of those cost savings may be on trucking, processing, and in other areas.

"Pennsylvania DHIA already partners with bull studs and local milk cooperatives," said Slusser. "This is the first time we were able to find another DHIA interested in partnering."

According to Slusser, a lot of the details for working together domestically still need to be developed. Several meetings will be held over the next couple of months to explore options for working together.

The bottom line is that both organizations want to come together to lower their costs to their members, ultimately improving dairy farmer profits.

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

By Ken Bailey
Penn State University
April 7, 2000

Dairy Prices Head Lower

·Blocks and barrels trade lower

·February cheese production up 2.9 percent

·Cheddar cheese enters the CCC

Cheese prices showed further weakness this week at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Barrel cheese prices fell from $1.0850 per pound on Monday, April 3 to $1.0775 on Friday, April 7. Likewise, prices for 40-pound blocks fell from $1.1125 per pound on Monday to $1.1075 by Friday. Just two carloads of cheese at the exchange actually traded hands this week. Most of the price decline occurred via uncovered offers. Chicago cheese prices are now very near the block support price of $1.10 per pound under the dairy price support program.

Part of the reason for the bearish outlook on cheese prices could be attributed to the dairy products report released by USDA April 3. That report shows American-type cheese production in February 2000 at 297.4 million pounds. Adjusted for leap year, that would be an increase of 3.5 percent. Total cheese production in February 2000 was 639.6 million pounds, up 2.9 percent when adjusted for leap year. The growth in cheese production in February clearly followed the growth in milk production.

The Commodity Credit Corporation, or CCC, purchased 40,022 pounds of block cheese

Farm Bureau Kicks

GLENMONT, N.Y.–New York Farm Bureau, an organization with more than 30,000 member families, conducted its annual policy execution event in Albany recently.

The two-day event gives county Farm Bureau members the opportunity to meet with state legislators and their staff to discuss issues that impact agriculture around the state. Senate Agriculture Committee Chairperson Nancy Larraine Hoffmann provided the keynote luncheon address.

"This event is paramount to our members and their goals," said John W. Lincoln, president of New York Farm Bureau. "There is no better forum for our members' voices to be heard than having them join together in Albany and meet face to face with the lawmakers of New York State."

The event began with a legislative issue briefing session for members provided by New York Farm Bureau staff. In the evening, a reception was conducted for legislators and their staff in the "well" of the legislative office building. A variety of New York's harvests were displayed, including wine from the Finger Lakes Region, cider from Washington County, cheese, and Long Island duck and baked potato chips as well as meat-balls, maple syrup, pancakes, corn chowder, and veal from commodity organizations from around the state. Tuesday's events began early with a breakfast, then members set out to meet with legislators and staff to discuss the organization's priorities for the year 2000.

Members gathered again for lunch to hear the keynote speaker, Sen. Nancy Larraine Hoffmann (R-Syracuse). A farmer herself, Hoffmann displayed her knowledge of and concern for life in rural New York. The senator outlined legislation on agricultural labor and the importance of working together to educate lawmakers and the media alike on New York's agricultural industry.

"Farmers in New York are lucky to have Senator Hoffman as chair of the Senate Agriculture Committee," said Lincoln. "She has continually shown her commitment to those issues which farmers hold dear."

These events mark the beginning of New York Farm Bureau policy execution year. Farm Bureau members will soon lobby Congressional delegates in Washington, D.C. New York Farm Bureau members conduct these types of events on an ongoing basis, which further supports the organization's grassroots efforts.

National Holstein Association Announces New Programs For Members

BRATTLEBORO, VT — The National Holstein Association has announced three new opportunities to help members manage their herds better. Those are EASY 2000, volume discounts, and computerized records.

Dairy producers are no longer required to present certificates at Classification for animals identified through the Holstein Tag ID program. Customers who identify with photos or sketches will continue to be required to present certificates at Classification, however in either case customers may choose to have scores stamped on all or none of their certificates.

Herds using EASY 2000 and Tag ID will be given an option to not receive a certificate for their registrations starting this fall. By using EASY 2000, producers will be able to receive their registration information electronically from the Holstein Association. If at a later date a certificate is required for a show or sale, one will be provided at no cost. The Holstein Association will continue to provide certificates of registration to customers who choose to continue receiving certificates.

Holstein Association Classification customers also will be eligible for volume discounts starting July 1, 2000. The per animal discounts will apply to all classification programs except the Classic.

Savings will be determined by the number of animals scored and the program, and will vary from $1.00 to $5.00 per animal.

The Holstein Association's Classification program provides accurate evaluations and valuable information for use in merchandising and genetic improvement. The variety of program options provide dairy producers with a program that will fit their needs. For more information on the Holstein Association's Classification programs call the Customer Service Department at 1-800- 952-5200.

After months of intense field testing, the Holstein Association will release EASY 2000 on April 17th. This new version of the Holstein Association's computerized ID program offers users increased flexibility, more interfaces with herd management programs and a built in upload mechanism that allows users to submit applications at the click of a button over the Internet.

EASY 2000 offers more Customized Tag options with set-up that's easier than ever. Through the tag set up users can choose the color of the tag they prefer and the information they wish to have printed. Through EASY 2000 dairy producers can assign different tag types to differentiate between groups of cattle.

For example, a yellow tag with the dam ID, date of birth and sire short name for animals registered in the Herdbook and a white tag with the Dam ID and birthdate for animals identified through the Basic ID program. Once the tag type is set up, users can preview an example of what their tags will look like. The correct tag type is automatically assigned when a calf application is entered.

EASY 2000 works with all forms of ID accepted by the Holstein Association, including photos and sketches and allows dairy producers who use photos or sketches to identify their animals to purchase Customized Tags for herd management.

EASY 2000 accepts files from 10 herd management programs: PC Dart, DHI PLUS, DC 305, DairyQuest, Westfalia Dairy Plan 5.0, CowSearch, BarnOwl-/Heifer 98, DairyDat, HerdPro 5.0, and Dairy Enterprises.

Importing calf data from these programs to EASY 2000 is done with ease by following the on screen instructions provided by the Import Wizard.

Once this information is loaded into EASY, omissions and errors are clearly marked with explanations of the problem provided.

Once all the calf information has been corrected and verified, submission through the Submission Wizard is simple. For users with an internet connection, submission of completed registrations is as simple as point and click.

Customers that register their calves before 6 months of age using EASY 2000 and Tag ID now receive $2 off each registration fee. EASY 2000 will be available at www.holsteinusa-.com on April 17 or you can call 1-800-952-5200 to reserve your copy today.

Penn State Council Visits Ag High School In Philadelphia

the more than 650 students is a member of the Pennsylvania FFA and 4-H clubs.

Because of the college prep status of the Saul curriculum (every student must take the prerequisite college courses) 60 percent of their graduates from the inner city go on to college and postgraduate studies. And because students are exposed to practical hands-on education, they are prepared to enter the work force with knowledge and experience--especially in the golf course and green house industries. Of course, exposure to the work ethic around the farm helps in their future job resumes too.

More than 1900 students and their parents apply for the 260 slots that open for freshman each year. Students must qualify with a minimum grade average and find their own transportation to the school. At present, students come from 72 different areas of the city. Absenteeism is only 5 percent average. This is at least 30 percent better than in other schools in the city school system.

Judging teams from Soul have won local and state honors and the present "export for learners" program sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and the Pennsylvania Holstein Association has students raising heifers at school to be exported to Puerto Rico and Mexico. Over the next six months, students will manage the heifers, select sires, breed the heifers, learn about export regulations, and observe port operations. Money is being raised so that the involved students can put the heifers on board and then fly to the destination country and meet their heifers and visit the farms where the heifers are going in the foreign country.

The school is a 50-acre working farm.

During the Council session, Philadelphia's state legislators took part in both formal and informal discussion with representatives from major food-related trade groups and businesses, as well as leaders from Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences and other organizations. Rep. Ray Bunt, chairman of Pennsylvania's House Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee, and Philadelphia Rep. Kathy Manderino provided formal comments. A tour of the Saul High School grounds and buildings gave the Council members first-hand exposure to the programs of the school.

"The council is reaching out to urban legislators to help them become more familiar with the agricultural sector and its impact on the welfare of constituents in the Philadelphia area," said Jerred Golden, president of the Penn State Ag Council. "We also have the opportunity to tour the most successful urban agricultural high school in the country and meet with some of its students."

Of special interest on the program was Fred Davis, southeast regional director for Penn State cooperative extension who discussed the extension programs in the urban environment. A panel discussion on the perspectives on land use was conducted with panelists James Shirk of Penn Ag Industries; Mary Bender, policy director, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture; David Sheppard, executive vice president, Pennsylvania Builders Association; Tom Stouffer, Lancaster Farmland Trust; and Stan Lembeck, Penn State professor of ag economics.

The Penn State Agricultural Council is an independent association whose membership is comprised of more than 90 organizations that represent agricultural or related interests in Pennsylvania. They include trade associations for various agricultural, forestry and food processing industries; commodity groups and cooperatives; media; organizations that provide products and services to the agribusiness community; government-related organizations; and related general interest groups. The council advises Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences and serves as an advocate for agricultural education to both legislative policy makers and agricultural leaders.

Penn State and Saul High School share an ongoing relationship through the Adopt-a-School Program that includes a designated Penn State scholarship, summer apprenticeships, college courses offered at the high school, and special demonstration projects. The next meeting is scheduled for October 19, 2000.

New Heifer Facility Opens To Provide Service To Customers

JAYNE SEBRIGHT
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEWBURG (Cumberland Co.) — As part of Agways initiative to enhance Northeast dairy profitability, a new TSPF heifer facility will open just outside of Shippensburg early next month.

The 47-acre operation is designed to raise 3,600 heifers from three days old to 21 months old at a cost of $1,134 per animal.

Agway has built the facility as a service to its dairy customers in the Cumberland Valley and surrounding areas. This is one of four heifer-raising facilities that the company has or will soon open in the Northeast. The facility touts guaranteed growth and performance through rigid health protocols. TSPF stands for a test specific pathogen free heifer raising facility.

We have 14 farmers, ranging in herd size from 50 to 400 cows, already subscribing to use the facility, said Scott Davenport, who is the project manager for the TSPF Heifer Service. Its currently at 65 to 70 percent of capacity.

According to Davenport, Agway built the facility to take the burden of quality heifer raising off the farmer. Theres nothing we are doing that is that different from what any nutritionist or dairy consultant would encourage any farmer to do, said Davenport. Were just specializing and giving it the attention it deserves.

Since quality heifer raising begins in the maternity pen, the Agway staff will work closely with farmers to maintain high standards in the maternity and early calfhood stages. Dr. Charles Gardner is Agways director of animal health and herd economics.

One of my responsibilities will be to oversee health care protocols and disease testing, both at the source farm and at the heifer facility, said Gardner. Ill be working with farmers on how they manage their dry cows and baby calves.

Agway requires that farmers keep cows in individual, well-bedded pens to freshen. The dams are also required to go through testing for both Johnes and Leukosis.

The farmer should feed the calf two quarts of colostrum within the first 30 minutes and another two quarts within the first 12 hours of the calfs life. The farmer is also required to get the calf away from the cow immediately.

Agway will pick up the calf at around three days of age. On the day prior to the pick up, they will take a blood sample from the calf. Based on the blood protein levels, Agway will determine who is responsible for disease treatments and death losses that occur in the first six weeks of the calfs life.

A calf with a low blood protein level may be rejected from the facility, while Agway will fully warranty a calf with high total proteins in the blood. Two middle ranges of blood protein levels correspond with the farmer being 100 percent responsible within the first six weeks and Agway sharing 50 percent of that responsibility with the farmer. After six weeks of age, Agway takes full responsibility for any death losses, major injuries, or treatments.

Agway plans to hire eight full-time employees on the facility. Currently four positions are already in place, including a farm manager, assistant farm manager, and two calf care technicians. One person will have the full-time job of picking up and delivering the calves, scheduling loads, taking blood samples at the source farms, and sanitizing the truck and trailer between each use.

Our goal is to pick up 40 calves a week, said Davenport. We need to sign up enough cows to meet that goal. We plan to work with farms within an hours distance from the facility.

Biosecurity is a big issue on the heifer facility. Visitors will be allowed in only by appointment once were opened, said Davenport. Our employees will also be required to shower in and shower out when they come to work.

After the calves arrive at the facility, they are put in individual calf pens and fed a milk replacer diet for the first six weeks of their stay. A high quality calf starter is introduced during that time.

Borrowing a design from Mason Dixon farms in Gettysburg, Agway made the calf pens about three foot off the ground. The front part of the pen has a slotted floor so that the manure and moisture can fall away from the pen and be cleaned out regularly. The back part is a cement slab that will be well bedded with shavings and straw.

After they are weaned at six weeks, the calves then move into groups of eight and have hay introduced into their diet. At nine weeks, they are placed in groups of 40. Then, at 12 weeks of age, they are moved into groups of 120 in a freestall facility and fed a total mixed ration.

The calf feeds and concentrates that were feeding these animals are the same feeds that are available to every farmer through Agway, said Davenport.

Agway plans to purchase forages from area growers on a day-to-day basis in the beginning phase and then move to long-term storage as they get more animals. We already have several farmers in Cumberland and Franklin counties signed on to provide us with forages.

Scott Davenport is the project manager for the new TSPF Heifer Service facility located in Cumberland County. The facility will be opened sometime in early May and is equipped to raise 3,600 heifers from three days to 21 months old for area farmers.

The $1,134 cost for each heifer includes shelter, feeding, transportation, normal health maintenance, a rigorous vaccination and vitamin program, hoof trimming, dehorning, optional tail docking, and up to three attempts of artificial insemination. The farmer-owner will determine what sires the heifers are bred to.

We will also provide monthly progress reports to the farmer as part of our service, said Davenport. We will be weighing and measuring the animals on a six-week cycle.

Agway chose Cumberland Valley as the area for this new heifer facility because of its closeness to so many dairy herds. There are more than 80,000 cows within an hour from the facility, said Davenport. We considered going more into southeast Pennsylvania, but land costs are higher and the land base is smaller.

Including the cost of the property, permitting, design, and actual facility, Agway has invested around five and a half million dollars into the TSPF heifer facility.

We built it with labor efficiency in mind, said Davenport. We may have invested more up front on certain things, but it will save labor costs down the road.

Along with designing a quality heifer care facility, they also had to develop a comprehensive nutrient management plan.

Were planning to export the manure to 1,200 acres of local farmland, said Davenport. Although 1,200 acres may sound like a lot, we need 1,800 acres just to supply the forages for the facility.

The facility is the first that Agway has developed on its own. Agway has partnered with existing farms for the other facilities. Even though this one isnt an official partnership, we will still be partnering with area farmers to supply feeds and use the manure, said Davenport.

Agway also hopes to work with other feed companies in utilizing the facility.

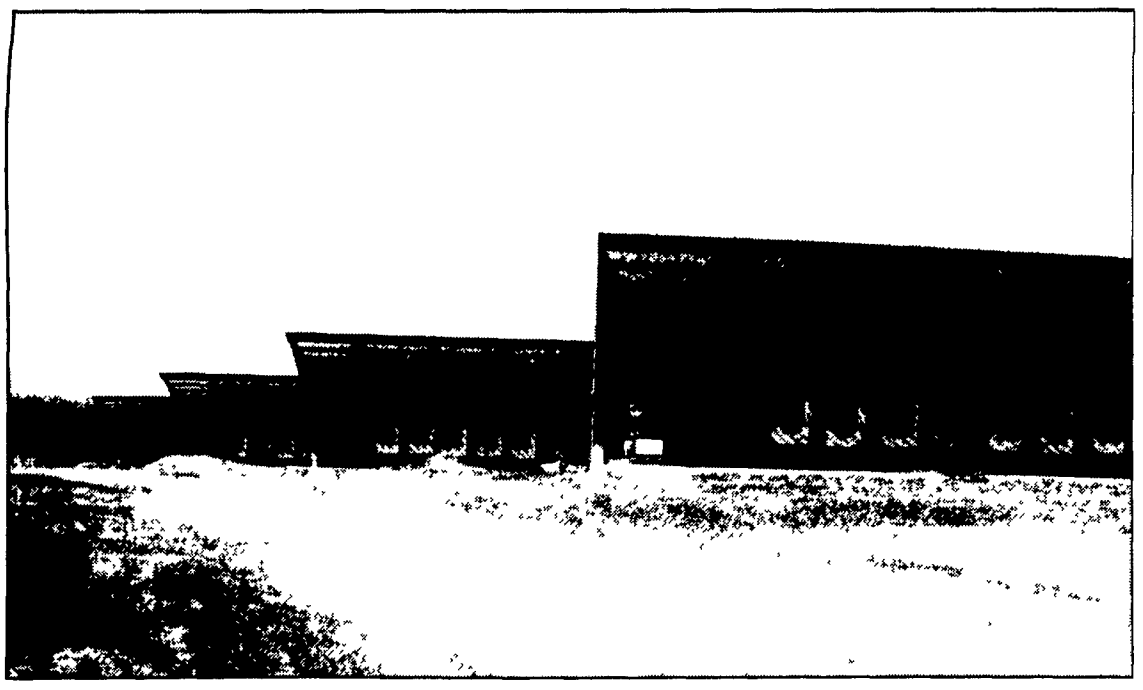
About 50 to 60 percent of the farmers currently subscribing to our service are Agway feed customers, said Davenport. We want the facility to be a team approach. Whether the farmer is an Agway customer or another feed companys account, we want the salesperson to be part of the process.

According to Davenport, Agway has received overwhelming positive support from the local agriculture community. Weve invested a lot of time in building good relations with our neighbors.

We have had some negative complaints from farmers who view us as the competitor in heifer raising and see the operation as commercial farming, said Davenport. But the majority of the farmers subscribing so far currently raise their own heifers. They looking to us to take some of the responsibility off their backs.

Davenport also admits to receiving some flack from anti-agriculture groups about the large facility. But, once he was able to answer their questions, they backed down.

Overall we have had a very good response, both from the people who have subscribed to the service and from other dairymen who see us as a low cost alternative for raising high quality heifers, said Davenport. One thing that helps is the economies of scale in raising 3,600 heifers.



To build the barns that will house calves for the first three months of their stay, Agway borrowed a building design from Mason Dixon farms in Gettysburg. According to Davenport, the buildings are designed with labor efficiency in mind.

Robert Rumler Named 2000 Dairy Science Distinguished Alumnus

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Robert Rumler, chairman emeritus of the Holstein Association USA Inc., is the recipient of the 2000 Distinguished Dairy Science Alumnus Award from Penn States department of dairy and animal science in the College of Agricultural Sciences.

Rumlers 34-year association with the Holstein Association USA Inc. is marked by its profound impact on the Holstein breed and the dairy industry. Under his leadership, the American Holstein breed became the dominant breed in the world, increasing from 45 percent of the national dairy herd to 85 percent, and to 90 percent of the registered dairy cow population. His designation as chairman emeritus upon retirement in 1982 was the first in the organizations history.

In the 1950s, Rumler led the association into international exports, helping the organization establish a subsidiary to provide export services for both buyers and sellers of genetic resources. He coordinated a technical assistance program that resulted in Hungarys purchase of 23,000 Holsteins, mostly from the United States, lifting the Eastern European nation from a milk deficit to self-sufficiency.

Rumler represented the U.S. livestock industry on the first agricultural trade mission to China in 1979 and made eight trips to the former Soviet Union on missions of agricultural cooperation and trade. He has served on several federal trade advisory panels.

Rumler received the 1999 Distinguished Service to Agriculture award from the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau. He was honored as a Penn State Distinguished Alumnus and a College of Agricultural Sciences Distinguished Alumnus.

Rumler has received distinguished service awards from the National Dairy Herd Improvement Association, the American Dairy Science Association, the Holstein Friesian Association of America and the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau. He is the recipient of the International Person of the Year award from the World Dairy Expo, was recognized by the National Dairy Shrine as a Guest of Honor and was inducted into the International Livestock Hall of Fame.

A native of Chambersburg, Pa., Rumler received his bachelors degree in dairy science with honors from Penn State in 1936. After graduating from Penn State, he worked for the University of Missouri as an assistant county agent. In 1937 he joined Penn State Cooperative Extension as an extension agent in Lycoming County, a position he held until 1945.

In 1945, Rumler became assistant manager and editor in the Ag Promotion Division of E.I. DuPont de Nemours & Co., a position that he held until 1948. Rumler then joined the Holstein-Friesian Association of America, now called the Holstein Association USA Inc., where he remained until retirement.

Rumler will be presented with the Dairy Science Distinguished Alumnus Award as part of Penn States 75th Annual Dairy Exposition Recognition and Awards Banquet, to be held this Saturday, April 15.

As part of being the Distinguished Alumnus, Rumler presented a talk, titled Looking Backward at Looking Forward, yesterday.

Congratulations !!

Chester County Conservation Honors Group

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — Chester County's conservation district and the HomeBuilders Association of Chester and Delaware counties continued their professional partnership in protecting the environment.

For the third year, the Excellence in Conservation Award went to a project completed by a development group, The Hankin Group, that has worked with the district on a variety of county projects.

This development group helped the district in 1988 in organizing the first training sessions on erosion control.

Dan Greig, district manager, said the 1999 award is given to The Hankin Group for the stream restoration of Lionville Run in West Whiteland Township.

The Hankin Group is developing Chandler Tract. Lionville Run had been rerouted 50 yards or so from its original channel to the perimeter of the property. With assistance from Trout Unlimited and West Chester Fish and Game Association members John Johnson and Carl Dusinberre, The Hankin Group decided to restore the original stream.

West Chester Fish and Game were concerned because Lionville Run flows into West Valley Creek, where the club has a fish nursery. BioHabitats, a stream restoration consulting firm, was contacted to look at the details of the stream and planting.

Stream restoration best management practices include root wad revetments, vortex rock weirs, rock cross vanes, meanders, and riffles. About 1,500 trees, shrubs, and plants were installed to provide bank stabilization and a canopied stream corridor.

Erosion and sediment controls were incorporated into all aspects of the project. Technivate was the excavator for the project. The project, noted the district, withstood the onslaught of Hurricane Floyd with little damage.

FSA Announces Farm Storage Loan Program

YORK (York Co.) – The USDA plans the start of a Farm Storage Facility Loan Program for the 2000 crop year.

The loan program is administered through the Farm Service Agency (FSA).

According to D. Wayne Kurtz, county executive director of the York County FSA Office, "The purpose of this program provides on farm storage resulting in additional marketing options at harvest when prices are usually at their lowest."

Kurtz said "USDA will publish an interim rule as soon as possible seeking comments on program details. Once this interim rule is published any actions by producers on grain storage facilities to purchase, contracts to purchase, ordering storage structures, drying or handling equipment or site preparation are eligible for loan."

Kurtz said, "York County farmers who may be interested in this program should call the office immediately. I remind producers that the current policy only allows loan eligibility for purchase contracts, equipment, or site preparation entered into after the publication of the interim rule."

Interested farmers can contact the York County FSA Office at (717) 755-2966, ext. 2.

Keystone Farm Credit Members Vote On Proposed Merger

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Lending is a very competitive business, especially in this area, said J. Robert Frazee, president and CEO of the proposed MidAtlantic Farm Credit Association, and "will be more competitive later."

Frazee spoke Monday evening to about 550 customers and Credit site in Westminster, Md. This week, in meetings conducted in New Holland and Fogelsville, stockholders voted on the proposed merger.

The other ACAs — Central Maryland Farm Credit, Chesapeake Farm Credit, Delaware arm Credit, and Marva Farm Credit — also have to vote to OK the merger.

The results of the voting to friends of the proposed agriculture credit association (ACA). He spoke during the annual stockholder meeting of the Keystone Farm Credit, ACA credit cooperative at Yoder's Restaurant in New Holland.

Keystone is one of five Farm Credit associations proposed to consolidate into one centrally located ACA, headquartered at the Central Maryland Farm determine the go-ahead for the merger won't be available until mid-month, according to Walter Hopkins, board chairman of the proposed MidAtlantic Association.

The officers outlined the reasons for the merger, which would create a Farm Credit with more than $1 billion in assets. The reasons outlined by Hopkins would create a "larger and stronger institution," he said. The consolidation would improve management, eliminate duplicate services, provide more efficient use of personnel and equipment, provide improved customer service, and streamline operations. That allows the association to become more competitive with interest rates and other member services, according to the board members.

"A commitment to the family and the family farm has made us great and will continue to do so," Hopkins said.

Frazee, 44, CEO of the proposed consolidation, is from Garrett County, Maryland with 17 years of Farm Credit and other banking experience. Frazee has a bachelor's degree in agriculture from the University of Maryland.

In a video of the proposed consolidation, poultry operations make up the greater portion of the bank's portfolio (at 21 percent). The consolidation spreads the risks over a diversified array of ag production enterprises.

The board, which has considered consolidation since 1998, recognized the need to streamline the organizations to provide a competitive edge over other ag lending institutions.

During a question-and-answer session, Hopkins noted the possibility of improved interest rates. "Will interest rates come down?" said Hopkins. "With greater efficiency and lower operating costs, they should."

Local meetings will probably continue even with the consolidation, Hopkins noted. Though 47 serve on the board for three-year terms, the proposed MidAtlantic association would be composed of six directors from Keystone, five from Central Maryland, four from Delaware, four from the Chesapeake, and three from Marva Farm Credit.

No branches are proposed to be closed because of the consolidation, Hopkins noted. No merging of operations has been discussed by the board.

Keystone Farm Credit itself had another successful year in 1999, according to Frazee. The previous Keystone chief operating officer, Phil Kimmel, has taken early retirement, noted Frazee.

Frazee said the Keystone loan portfolio is "healthy" and credit stable despite the dry weather and milk price volatility.

As outlined in the Keystone annual report, net income for the year ended Dec. 31, 1999, totaled $6.07 million, a decrease of $459,000 or 7.03 percent, as compared to $6.5 million for the same period of 1998. Interest income for the year ended Dec. 31, 1999, was $25.56 million, a decrease of $3.9 million or 13.27 percent as compared to $29.47 million for the same period of 1998.

According to the report, net interest income decreased $1.12 million or 12.06 percent in 1999 compared to 1998. The primary reason for the decrease was a decrease in interest income recognized on nonaccrual loans. Interest income on nonaccrual loans for the 12 months ended Dec. 31, 1999, totaled $487,000, a decrease of $947,000, compared to $1.43 million at the previous year-end.

A highly competitive lending environment will place increased pressure on interest spreads in the future, noted the report. Objectives include seeking ways to maintain high- quality loan volume priced at competitive rates, and to manage credit risk in the entire portfolio.

Inspirational speaker David Okerlund from Manchester, Ohio, noted that humor can be used to adapt to changing and challenging times.

Okerlund noted that we live in a world of taller buildings and shorter tempers, bigger houses and smaller families, more knowledge and poorer judgement, higher income and lesser morals, and these are taking their toll on our psyche.

"We can cross the globe on the Internet but can't talk to our children across the kitchen table," he said.

In these changing times, people have overlooked the fundamentals of dealing with each other and learning the coping skills of rapidly changing times.

Okerlund said he is actually paid money by companies to reintroduce humor to the workplace.

By being too caught up in the world, we are "losing the gifts the Great Lord gave you to survive," he said, and that includes faith in the business of farming and in each other.

He told members to "dance with life and be resilient." Okerlund said the five most important minutes of a day are the first five minutes when you wake up in the morning. "How many of you wake up and take charge of the first five minutes of your lives every day?" Okerlund said.

He said he vows to thank the Lord every day and to be an inspiration to others.

"I'm not going to let a day go by without touching someone's life," he said. We should continue to reward others with hanks and to learn how to "pat each other on the back." Having the right attitude is key and learning life is not an easy road gives us perspective.

Okerlund remembers hearing tales of the Great Depression. He related the story of a farmer who died and had a note in his pocket. On the note, the farmer wrote how much he actually enjoyed the Depression because he had more fun than in his entire life. The farmer learned how to live and "have real friends and eat real food, and get more exercise, " said Okerlund, while dropping all the nonessential worries about life.

Maryland Brown Swiss Breeders Review Great Year

CREAGERSTOWN, MD — 90 Brown Swiss breeders, friends, and industry personnel recently attended the annual meeting of the Maryland Brown Swiss Association, held at the St. John's Lutheran Church Parish Hall in Creagerstown, Md.

During the meeting, Maryland reviewed another successful year, highlighting state and national activities and ending 1999 with a solid financial report. Helping the bottom line was the success of the first-ever joint breeds convention hosted in Maryland last July.

Dr. Lee Majeskie, co-treasurer of the combined National Ayrshire and Brown Swiss Convention, reported that the convention netted more than $2,000 in profit for each dairy breed. Also adding to the Maryland Brown Swiss Association's income was a highly successful national Brown Swiss sale.

"The convention was thought to be one of the really good ones, and it proved to be done successfully as a joint effort," said Majeskie.

President Cindy Warner passed along reports from John Meyer, National Brown Swiss executive secretary, and Evan Wright, Maryland's national director. Nationally, Meyer reported that total registration during 1999 were more than 10,500. Transfers of Brown Swiss totaled about 4,500. And the national association welcomed 951 first-time buyers.

According to Meyer, United States' interest in the Brown Swiss continues to grow. Significant increases were seen in embryo registrations, increasing from 2,879 in 1998 to 3,399 in 1999. "Embryo transfer work continues to be the best way to expand the breed," said Meyer.

Brown Swiss milk production in the United States is at an all-time high, with 1999 production averaging 17,230 pounds per registered Brown Swiss. Protein was at 613 pounds. On an energy corrected milk basis, Brown Swiss production averaged 19,674 pounds.

Majeskie then presented Maryland Brown Swiss breeders with production awards, commending the breeders for their outstanding production. Maryland Brown Swiss breeders were the leaders among all breeds with an energy-corrected milk average of 21,296 pounds.

Green-Castle Swiss of Street, Md., had the high herd average with 26,195 pounds energy-corrected milk (ECM), while Edwin Fry of Chestertown, Md., won the award for the high average for nine cows or less with 25,457 ECM.

"Brown Swiss breeders can be proud of how the breed is doing in the state," said Majeskie. He credited the Maryland association for both their high-producing cattle and their accomplishments in the type arena.

According to Majeskie, Maryland put together an excellent class for the Hoard's Dairymen contest, featuring three Brown Swiss from GS Associates of New Windsor and one owned by Cletus and Janice Frey of Smithsburg.

Norm and Howard Fleming, junior directors, gave the youth report and recognized individual achievements, as well as the Maryland Bell Ringer award winners. Aimee Smith was honored with the Sweepstakes Award. Record book awards went to Hannah Smith, junior winner; Suzanne Perdue, intermediate; and Courtney Smith, senior. The Maryland Junior Appreciation award was presented to Dr. Lee Majeskie.

The Maryland Dairy Judging team was also recognized during the meeting. Members included Amanda Valentine, Jeff Sutton, Josh Sanders, and Brett Haines.

During the meeting, President Cindy Warner congratulates Suzanne Perdue, winner of the Intermediate Record Book judging competition.

According to Cindy Warner, the association is very proud of its youth and young Brown Swiss enthusiasts in Maryland. She encouraged members to participate in the national Brown Swiss Ambassador program to be held at the National Brown Swiss Convention in Harrisburg this July. The deadline for applications is April 15.

"This would be the year to be an Ambassador because the United States breeders are hosting the World Brown Swiss Conference in conjunction with the World Dairy Expo in Madison this fall," said Warner. "This would be the time to attend this prestigious event."

After committee reports were presented, Jocelyn Askins of Primerica gave a presentation on Mutual Funds, where she has invested the convention profits for future growth and return for the association.

Warner also presented Daphne Sigler with a gift from the association for serving as treasurer. Warner thanked Sigler for her commitment to handling the finances so well.

Elected officers for the association include Cindy Warner, president; Dennis Smith, vice president; Julie Mayer, secretary; and newly-elected treasurer, Judy Majeskie. Directors are Jennifer Keilholtz, Faith Burall, Brad Garst, and Kathy Whitman.

from the Midwest this week under the dairy price support program. This is significant since it is the first sale of block cheese to the government under this program since June 1997. The CCC also cancelled 79,200 pounds of process cheese previously purchased.

So what does this mean for the outlook for milk prices? First, I developed an outlook for dairy commodity prices. I am optimistic that cheese prices will improve later in the year. I am forecasting the block cheese will remain at depressed levels at least until June. Then I expect it will peak at $1.50 per pound by October. Some may think this a bit optimistic. I am expecting butter prices to peak at $1.05 per pound sometime this fall.

I then used my Penn State dairy forecasting model to forecast class prices under the federal order system. Those month-to-month forecasts are in Table 3. I expect the Class III price to remain at or below $10 per cwt through June. Thereafter it will peak at $13.60 per cwt in November. That should provide a 12-month average Class III price of $11.26 per cwt. This forecast assumes cow numbers on farms begins to respond to low milk prices and the recent growth in the milk supply slows down.

For more information on market and federal order data, see my Penn State Dairy Outlook website http://www.aers.psu.edu/dairyoutlook/.

News Conference On West Nile Virus Set

The Progressive Agricultures Organization (Pro Ag) will hold a press conference concerning the West Nile Virus on Monday April 17th. The press conference will be held at the Shadow Brook Dairy Bar in Tunkhannock and will begin at 11:30 a.m.

According to Arden Tewksbury Manager of Pro Ag the virus became very prominent in Long Island and New York City during 1999. Seven people and 13 pleasure horses died as a result of the virus. In addition hundreds of other people were treated for the virus.

The West Nile Virus allegedly had never been identified in the western hemisphere until last year. The virus causes encephalitis that affects the central nervous system It is passed to humans and animals via mosquitoes who pick up the virus by feeding on infected birds. Allegedly the virus came to the United States by unknown carriers from Africa.

Couple this virus with other insects and different viruses that are affecting our woodlands and citrus groves, and everyone should be concerned -- farmers and consumers alike, regarding the free trade agreements that allow uninspected food supplies to enter the United States.

"I think its important that livestock growers be informed of the possible infestation of the West Nile Virus into Pennsylvania and preventive stops that might be taken to protect human beings and animals," Tewksbury said.

Different government representatives have been invited to the press conference and representatives of the Native American Enviro-Tech from Greentown (Pike County) will be present to explain precautions that farmers and consumers may take to fight the possible virus.

Tewksbury said the Native American Enviro-Tech is already working with various racetracks in New York and New Jersey to protect racehorses.

Everyone is invited to the Press Conference.

Maryland and Virginia Announces 2000 'Outstanding Young Cooperators'

RESTON, Va. — Jeff and Lisa Bender from Norlina, N.C. were named Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers' 2000 Outstanding Young Cooperators (YC).

Announced at the cooperative's 80th annual meeting on Wednesday, March 29, the Outstanding YCs will represent Maryland and Virginia at two national educational conferences and will attend monthly board meetings in Reston, Va.

The conferences include the National Institute on Cooperative Education in Nashville, Tenn., in August and the National Milk Producers YC Conference and Annual Meeting in Dallas, Texas, in November.

Graduates of North Carolina State University, Jeff and Lisa have operated the dairy together since 1991 when they began milking 100 cows. Currently milking 245 Holsteins and managing 400 acres of crops, the Benders are focused on consistently improving their farm by upgrading the facilities to improve cow comfort as well as improving the efficiency and productivity of their cropping systems. They have one son, Jacob, who helps look after the calves and is active in several 4-H projects.

Runners-Up Gordon and Sheila Lee from Landrum, S.C., were named first runners-up and will attend the National Milk Producers YC Conference and Annual Meeting in Dallas, Texas, in November. The Lees operate Lees Dairy Farm Inc. where they milk 100 Holsteins and raise 70 youngstock.

Tim Motley from Chatham, Va., was selected second runner-up and will attend the National Institute on Cooperative Education in Nashville, Tenn., in August. With his wife, Carol, and three children Adam, Melissa and Julie, Tim operates a 145-cow milking herd and raises 165 replacement heifers.

Timmy and Tammie French from Woodstock, Va., and Billy and Anne French from Maurertown, Va., were named third and fourth runners-up, respectively, and will attend the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperatives YC Leadership Conference in Carlisle, Pa., in July. Timmy and Tammie milk 80 Jerseys and Holsteins on Skip-A-Dale farm and manage all aspects of the farm from herd health to crops. Billy and Anne have operated French Brothers Dairy for the past 19 years and currently milk 119 Holsteins and raise 106 youngstock.

All YC contestants will be invited to attend a Maryland and Virginia board meeting and tour the cooperative headquarters in Reston, Va. Other contestants were: Billy & Beverly Ethridge, Bowman, S.C.; John & Mary Goodwin, Orange, Va.; Byron Graybeal, Peach Bottom, Pa.; Charles Harris, Mineral, Va.; Ronnie & Cyndi Messick, Midland, Va.; Thurman Nesbitt, McConnellsburg, Pa.; and Clint Walker, Clinton, S.C.

Based on an application, interview and response to an industry round-table discussion question, participants were evaluated on their dairy career progress, communication skills, cooperative knowledge and organizational activities.

Named first runners-up were Gordon and Sheila Lee, Landrum, S.C. The couple milks 100 Holsteins and raises 70 replacement heifers on Lees Dairy Farm.

Internships In Animal Sciences

Lawrence D. Muller and Erskine H. Cash
Department of Dairy and Animal Science

Internships, or work experience, seem to be a "buzz word" on college campuses and in the business community. Internships are certainly not new and were probably first initiated in the medical field. However, the interest and need for internship programs in the animal sciences and all of agriculture has increased in recent years. The Department of Dairy and Animal Science at Penn State now has over 25 companies, businesses, and employers that interview students on campus each year and hire interns.

The interest and growth of internship programs has occurred for many reasons. From the student's standpoint, internships enable students to:

- Explore career interests
- Establish professional goals
- Apply knowledge gained in classes
- Identify additional courses needed
- Gain valuable employment experience

Internships allow students to gain experience related to their field of study, often while receiving academic credit. Often, an employer will not hire a student after graduation unless they have had some experience. How does a student get experience if nobody will hire them? An internship is one answer. Many students now do two or more internships. Comments from students who recently completed internships include: "My internship gave me the opportunity to apply what I had learned in courses." "An internship helps a person think about what you want to do for the rest of your life, and it provides contacts." Students often return to campus with a better understanding of how their course work relates to the real world.

Internships provide many benefits to employers:

- Influence students career paths
- Help to strengthen college curricula
- Evaluate prospective employees
- Benefit from an infusion of new ideas

Clearly, a 12-week internship can provide an employer with a good evaluation of future employees. According to a recent survey, over 1/3 of the companies surveyed said interns were their most important source of new employees.

At Penn State, we are encouraging more students to get these real life experiences and grow beyond the classroom. To accomplish this, we need companies, businesses, and organizations to partner in the education of college students Companies and businesses that have interviewed and selected students for internship programs through the Department of Dairy and Animal Science include:

Sen. McGee Heads Efforts To Fight Timber Theft

GLENMONT, N.Y.–New York Farm Bureau, an organization with more than 30,000 member families, applauds the efforts of the Legislative Commission on Rural Resources and the Senate Agriculture Committee's recent work regarding timber theft in New York State.

Lead by Rural Resources Commission Chair, Pat McGee (R-Olean) and Senate Agriculture Committee Chair, Nancy Larraine Hoffmann (R-Syracuse), a joint hearing was held earlier in February to examine this threat to rural life in New York state.

New York Farm Bureau Director of Governmental Relations Patrick Hooker provided testimony at the hearings.

"On behalf of our members, I commend the New York State Legislative Commission on Rural Resources and the Senate Agriculture Committee for their attention to this matter," said Hooker. "New York farmers own and control large tracts of timberland. In order to protect the environment and our member families' investments and security, increased enforcement and penalties for trespass and timber theft is needed."

Farmers have been the target of timber theft in a variety of ways. First, knowingly or not, a logger can easily trespass and remove unauthorized timber without significant penalties. Second, a logger can provide payment to a farmer that may be well below market price, due in part to the farmer's lack of knowledge of the industry.

"We have been working with several forestry related organizations on this issue, and feel that hearings such as this and an open dialogue is the first step in adequately controlling timber theft in New York State," said Hooker. "We have also made efforts to help farmers realize that their forestland should be properly managed and maintained, especially since commodity prices are stagnant or dropping."

The Senate will be conducting two more hearings on timber theft, in addition to the recent hearing in Albany. The additional hearings will be April 5 in Syracuse (4:30 p.m.-8 p.m.) and May 4 in Jamestown (4:30 p.m.-8 p.m.).

With the world becoming smaller, more students are doing internships outside the United States. Recently, two students, Mark Mosemann and Amy Packard, spent a summer at the Northern Ireland Agriculture Research Institute. Their internship was primarily with dairy cattle research, but the foreign experience provided them the opportunity to learn another culture and about living in another country. One of our goals is to enhance these types of experiences.

EXTERNSHIPS: A few years ago, we implemented a one-week externship program called Partnerships with Agribusiness. This program is directed toward first or second year students, whereas the internship program focuses on students who have completed two or three years of college. The externship provides a "shadowing experience" where a student spends one week with a company or business learning about this particular business as a possible future career. This "new" program has 30 students, and has often led to future internship opportunities.

Business, companies, or organizations interested in partnering with the internship and/or externship programs, please respond to Dr. Erskine H. Cash, Department of Dairy & Animal Science, 324 William L. Henning Bldg., University Park, PA 16802; phone (814) 863-3662; Fax: (814) 863-6042; Email (ecash@das.psu.edu).

101 Farms In 100 Days

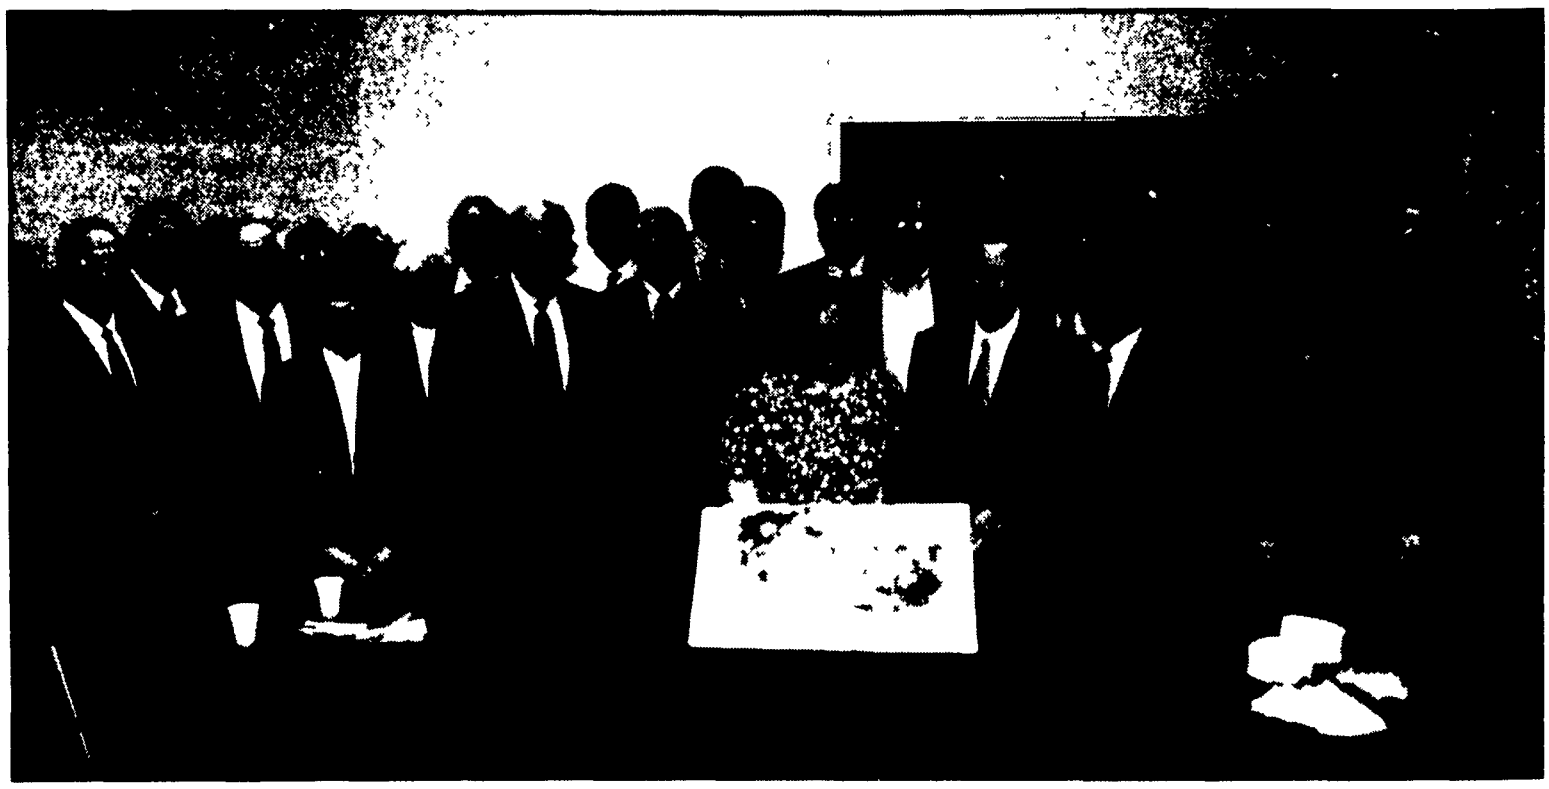
"Just as agriculture was the lifeblood of our Commonwealth's past, it is also the key to a prosperous future. Our farmers must always be the defining characteristic of Pennsylvania's landscape. That's why we start the new millennium by committing $100 million over the next five years to preserve our Commonwealth's precious farmland.

"It's a compelling acknowledgement of the basic truth that our environment is not inherited from our parents, but borrowed from our children. Agriculture is inescapably entwined with our environment."

Also at the board meeting, Russell Nickel was honored for his work on the farmland preservation board since it was created in 1989.

The farmland preservation program allows the state and counties to purchase development rights, referred to as easements, to guarantee that farms will remain as agricultural land. The funds for farmland preservation in the "Growing Greener" program come from Gov. Ridge's top legislative priority last fall when he signed into law nearly $650 million to protect open space, eliminate the maintenance backlog in state parks, clean up abandoned mines, restore watersheds, provide funds for recreational trails, help communities address land use, provide new and upgraded water and sewer system along with preserving farmland.



To celebrate the preservation of 101 farms in Gov. Tom Ridge's time table of 100 days, these members of the state and local farmland preservation boards pose just before the cake is cut. The latest group of 34 farms were approved at the state perservation board meeting Thursday. Photo by Everett Newswanger, editor.

Last month Gov. Ridge unveiled his 2000-01 budget proposing $135 million to fund the second year of the five-year initiative. These funds will come from $100 million in new money from the general fund and $35 million in funds redirected from the recycling and hazardous sites cleanup funds and the landfall closure accounts.

To mark the event, a large celebration cake was on hand at the close of the board meeting for everyone present to commemorate the "momentous milestone."

Use of Bulk Tank Milk Somatic Cell Count To Assess Udder Health

Bhushan Jayarao, MVSc, Ph.D, MPH
Extension Veterinarian

Analysis of bulk tank somatic cell counts (BTSCC) along with bulk tank milk culturing for mastitis pathogens can be used effectively to monitor herd udder health status. Bulk tank somatic cell counts (BTSCC) in milk is comprise mostly of leucocytes that enter the udder to destroy mastitis causing bacteria and to repair damaged udder tissue.

All milk samples will contain some somatic cells, however their numbers increase considerably when an mastitis causing bacteria cause inflammation, or there is injury to the udder. Injured mammary tissue and high number of somatic cells following an infection can clog the tiny milk ducts in the udder which in turn results in lowered secretion and production.

Although somatic cells are always present in milk, their numbers vary significantly among both infected and uninfected cows. Variations in SCC are also influenced by the stage of lactation, season of the year, and individual cow response to infection. Taking into account these factors, it is difficult to assess udder health in a herd from BTSCC's with just one sample.

Work done at Penn State has shown that at least 4-6 raw milk samples tested for BTSCC over a 8-12 week period to be extremely helpful in making decisions with regard to udder health status of a herd.

Crop Revenue Coverage (CRC) is an insurance program that guarantees a stated amount of revenue. CRC (like Income Protection) provides comprehensive protection through a dollar guarantee based on Commodity futures prices. CRC protects a producer from loss of revenue resulting from low prices, low yields, or a combination of the two. Since the protection of the producer's revenue is the primary objective, CRC contains provisions addressing both yield and price risks. An additional feature of CRC is that it provides replacement value protection. This works because the insurance guarantee increases if the Harvest Price exceeds the Base Price. Unlike MPCI coverage, with a CRC policy, the producer does not necessarily have to experience an insurable yield loss to receive an indemnity payment.

CRC Procedures

CRC has the same acreage and production reporting dates, optional units and quality adjustment enhancements as MPCI. An enterprise discount is available if basic and optional units are combined. An enterprise unit is all insurable acreage of the insured crop in the county in which the producer has a share on the date coverage begins for the crop year. An enterprise unit must consist of two or more basic units (or two or more optional units) of the same insured crop that are located in two or more separate sections, section equivalents, or FSA farm serial numbers. With enterprise units, the producer must maintain any required production records on a basic or optional unit basis.

How CRC Works?

CRC is available for corn and soybeans in Pennsylvania. Prior to sales closing, the producer and his local insurance agent establish a Minimum Guarantee per acre. This is based on the producer's approved yield, a Base Price (established using the appropriate harvest futures contract), and the farmer's selected coverage level. Producers can choose coverage levels ranging between 50 and 75 percent. In selected established counties, coverage up to 85 percent is also available.

Additionally, a Harvest Guarantee is established at harvest using the approved yield (same as the MPCI policy), the Harvest Price (established using the appropriate futures contract), and the farmer's selected coverage level. Once the crop is harvested, the producer's actual yield is multiplied by the Harvest Price, resulting in the Calculated Revenue.

The Final Guarantee is the greater of the Minimum or Harvested Guarantees. The Calculated Revenue is compared with the Final Guarantee; if the Calculated Revenue is less than the Final Guarantee, the farmer is paid the difference as an indemnity payment.

Base and Harvest Price

The Base Price is an average of the daily settlement prices during the month of Febuary on the CBOT. The Harvest Price is an average of the daily settlement prices for the November futures contract. The Harvest Price is used to determine the Harvest Guarantee and Calculated Revenue. The Harvest Price cannot exceed or fall below the Base Price by more than $1.50 per bushel on corn and $3.00 per bushel on soybeans. (The Harvest Price IS NOT the price a producer receives for his crop at the local elevator.)

What is the CRC Price Percentage?

The farmer selects a Price Percentage that is multiplied times the relevant monthly averages for the Base and Harvest Prices to calculate the CRC policy's final Base and Harvest Prices. Farmers may select 100 percent or 95 percent as the Price Percentage for their policy. If the farmer has never selected a Price Percentage, then the policy's Price Percentage defaults to 95 percent.

Examples

In this next section, lets look at how CRC would perform under different combinations of higher or lower prices and normal or reduced yields.

Example 1.

Harvest price ends up higher than the Base Price—With a 34 Percent Production Loss

Approved APH yield = 70 bushels per acre

Coverage Level = 65%

Base Price = $2.20 per bushel

Harvest Price = $3.00 per bushel

Production = 46 bushels per acre

Crop Value = Production times Harvest Price = $138.00

Revenue Guarantee = Approved APH yield times Coverage Level times the higher of Base Price or Harvest Price

Revenue Guarantee = $136.50

Revenue Guarantee - Crop Value = CRC Indemnity

$136.50 - $138.00 = $0.00

In example 1, prices were higher at the time of the harvest price calculation than at the time of the base price calculation. As a result, the revenue guarantee increased from $100.10 to $136.50. However, the combination of the 46 bushel yield and the $3.00 price provided a revenue of $138 per acre which was slightly above the guarantee of $136.50, resulting in no CRC indemnity being paid out

Example 2.

Harvest ends up higher than Base Price — With a 57 Percent Production Loss

Question: My cows are not milking very well. What might be the problem?

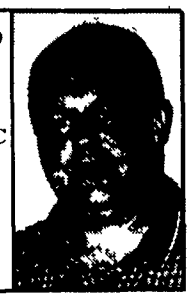
This commonly asked question came about three weeks ago. Rather than answer it, I will use it as an illustration for the importance of cooperation between DHIA technician and dairyman in the effort to generate good management information.

When I first heard from this dairyman, I pulled a copy of his last two PA DHIA MUN and Herd Summary II reports. His herd did indicate some nutritional problems as seen by his MUN values, but other factors just did not line up To be honest, I was wondering what this guy expected Now I know all dairy producers desire to make more milk, all the time, but we need to be realistic This herd is averaging 60 plus pounds of milk at 216 days in milk. It would be nice to get more, but this herd has a rolling herd average over 17,000. It should also be noted that the 150 day adjusted average has ranged from 55 pounds to 60 pounds over the course of a year. Lastly, daily test period average was 60 pounds at the highest point for the last year. My conclusion was that considering these factors, this herd was performing as we would expect. MUN testing had just started, therefore I could not determine if past production was suppressed due to improperly balanced diets, other management considerations, or genetics. I felt that something could be done now with MUN at six.

I paid a visit to the farm. To make a long story short, we were both surprised by each other's milk pound evaluation This

Dairyman To Dairyman

GEORGE CUDOC
PA DHIA
Consulting
Dairyman



dairyman based his evaluation on milk from the bulk tank, while I used what the cows told me through their records. These should be the same; why aren't they? I will start out by saying that any form of records is only as good as we make it. The input side of the milk calculation for AM-PM tested herds needs to be very accurate. The first thing that absolutely must be noted correctly is what happened before the DHIA technician arrived for the testing procedures.

A-P testing, as it is commonly referred to, involves collecting milk samples and milk weights that will be used to estimate daily output of the cow. This requires establishing what time the cow had in which to produce this milk. We need to know when she was milked last. Here is what can happen when we are not precise about that one piece of data.

We can easily see that even 15 minutes can change calculations substantially for daily milk calculations. Now apply this to smaller herds and the milk pounds per cow can change dramatically. A herd with 40 cows will be 4 to 5 pounds different in daily average between calculated and shipments out of the bulk tank. To successfully use any records we need to start at the very basics and not assume anything. Comparing cow total weights against bulk tank weights is done every month. This comparison is found on the backside of PA DHIA Herd Summary I at the bottom, in the middle. It can also be found on PA DHIA Herd Summary II on the back left side on the bottom.

We see that information about what we did before the technician arrives can be as important as the accurate recording of milk weights. Also, take care that you know what the bulk tank weights really are. Is there home or calf use? Is there discarded milk from the tank for mastitis or any other reason? When these issues are addressed, the use of the information becomes so much more valuable. By teaming with your DHIA technician, you can be sure that you are using the correct information. When a situation like this happens, I visit the farm to work with the dairyman and to make certain we are reading from the same page. By the way, in this case adjustments were made from MUN analysis and we saw a milk response, with less grain in the diet. What a bonus to using good records!

Approved APH yield = 70 bushels per acre

Coverage Level = 65%

Base Price = $2.20 per bushel

Harvest Price = $3.00 per bushel

Production = 30 bushels per acre

Crop Value = Production times Harvest Price = $90.00

Revenue Guarantee = Approved APH yield times Coverage Level times the higher of Base Price or Harvest Price

Revenue Guarantee = $136.50

Revenue Guarantee – Crop Value = CRC Indemnity

$136.50 – $90.00 = $46.50

In example 2, prices were higher at the time of the harvest price calculation at the time of the base price calculation. As a result, the revenue guarantee increased from $100.10 to $136.50. However, the combination of a 30 bushel yield and a $3.00 price provided a revenue of only $90 per acre, well below the guarantee of $136.50 per acre. In this case a CRC indemnity payment of $46.50 per acre was made to the producer. In other words, the 15.5 bushel or 22 percent of the yield loss covered by the policy was replaced at the higher $3 00 level. This is what is meant by saying the policy covers replacement costs.

Example 3.

Harvest price less than Base Price - With a 34 Percent Production Loss

Approved APH yield = 70 bushels per acre

Coverage Level = 65%

Base Price = $2.20 per bushel

Harvest Price = $1.35 per bushel

Production = 46 bushels per acre

Crop Value = Production to Count times Harvest Price = $62.10

Revenue Guarantee = Approved APH yield times Coverage Level times the higher of Base Price or Harvest Price

Revenue Guarantee = $100.10

Revenue Guarantee - Crop Value = CRC Indemnity

$100.10-$62.10 = $38 00

In example 3, prices were lower at harvest than at the time of the base price calculation. As a result, the revenue guarantee stayed at the $100.10 per acre level. Even though the production loss was only 34 percent (46 bushel yield), the combination of a low yield and a low price generated a crop value of only $62.10, triggering a CRC indemnity payment of $38 00 per acre ($100.10-$62.10). In this case, the producer would not have received a payment if he only had 65 percent MPCI coverage, since the yield only fell 34 percent.

Example 4.

Harvest price less than Base Price - With a 57 Percent Production Loss

Approved APH yield = 70 bushels per acre

Coverage Level= 65%

Base Price = $2.20 per bushel

Harvest Price = $1.35 per bushel

Production = 30 bushels per acre

Crop Value = Production to Count times Harvest Price = $40.50

Revenue Guarantee = Approved APH yield times Coverage Level times the higher of Base Price or Harvest Price

Revenue Guarantee = $100.10

Revenue Guarantee – Crop Value = CRC Indemnity

$100.10 – $40.50 = $59.60

In example 4, prices were lower at harvest than at the time of the base price calculation. As a result, the revenue guarantee stayed at the $100.10 per acre level. The combination of both a low yield and a low price generated a crop value of only $40.50, triggering a CRC indemnity payment of $59.60 per acre. While both CRC and MPCI coverage at 65 percent would have paid indemnities, in this case (57% loss), the CRC indemnity would have been larger since the revenue calculation considered both yield loss and the price decline.

CRC Features

- Cash value protection allows for aggressive marketing strategies
- Provides upside and downside price protection
- Alternative to MPCI
- Same subsidy as MPCI
- Base and Harvest Prices are established using the national commodity exchanges
- Uses producers own Actual Production History in establishing guarantees on a unit basis
- Protects against perils of price and yield - no yield loss needed for indemnity
- Market based guarantee before planting is used as a minimum at harvest time
- Discounts for combining units
- Premiums for the CRC program are higher than premiums for the current MPCI program.
- In some cases, the farmer could receive less of an indemnity payment from CRC than under the current MPCI program. This could only happen if FCIC set the MPCI market price higher than the CRC Base Price The MPCI program sometimes overpays losses because the loss is no based on the market value of th crop, unlike CRC which pay losses based upon market determined prices.

Use of Bulk Tank Milk Somatic Cell Count

Research done on herds in the Quinte area of Ontario, Canada indicated that the ability of bulk tank counts to predict the quarter infection rate of herds was approximately doubled (45.5% versus 80%) when the interpretation was based on 6 previous monthly bulk tank samples instead of a single test. BTSCC allows veterinarians to assess the overall udder health status of a dairy herd.

A herd that has an excellent udder health program in place will have the BTSCC counts and incidence of mastitis shown in Table 1. An estimate of lost milk production as predicted from bulk tank somatic cess count is given in Table 2. Based on this table, herds with cell counts over 500,000 SCC could be producing from 8 to 20% below potential because of the presence of subclinical mastitis infections. This clearly suggests that herds with over 500,00% cells/ml of bulk tank milk should implement mastitis control and prevention practices rather urgently. Herds consistently over 200,000 cells/ml could also reduce the incidence of mastitis by adopting a good mastitis control program.

•Use individual water and feed buckets.

•Use individual tack, which means saddles, bridles and bits.

•Do not share grooming equipment.

•Do not use dental instruments, hoof knives or hoof picks on more than one horse

•Hypodermic needles should be used for single injections, then destroyed

"If you are considering buying a horse through auction or from an individual, insist on a prepurchase test and try to find out the history of the animal," Griswold said. "If the owners are not willing to divulge that, look elsewhere."

Survey: Young Farmers See Exports As Key

PARK RIDGE, Ill. – America's young farmers and ranchers say government policies to boost U.S. farm exports, such as establishing permanent normal table relations with China, are the best way to address the top challenge facing them today – profit.

Those were among the results of a survey of 302 young farmers and ranchers from 47 states, ages 18-35, conducted by the American Farm Bureau Federation (AFBF), the nation's largest farm organization.

The eighth annual survey of participants in AFBF's Young Farmer & Rancher Program revealed the traditional optimism of younger producers has been tempted by economic challenges, but they continue to invest in new technology and business practices to sharpen their competitive edge and protect the environment.

Overall results of the informal survey, conducted during February's World Congress of Young Farmers, show that the future of American agriculture is in competent and caring hands.

Reflecting present farm economic conditions, more than a third (36.1 percent) of the young U.S. farmers surveyed said overall profitability was their top concern, up from last year's 32.4 percent and considerably higher than 1998's 18.6 percent. The cost of government regulations was second (13.6 percent), while the availability of land and other resources was third (11.7 percent). Over the survey's eight-year history, profitability has topped the list of concerns five times and regulations three times.

Like last year, the fourth largest challenge this year was urban enroachment on farmland, selected by 9.1 percent of the respondents. Fifth on the list (7.3 percent) was competition from larger farms, followed closely by tax burdens (7 percent). Labor availability and related regulations was seventh (5.1 percent). This year's drop other top challenges, in descending order, were the willingness of parents to turn over more control of the farm, availability of financing and health care availability.

The young farmers view international trade as the key to profitability. For the third straight year, respondents said boosting U.S. agricultural exports was the most important step the U.S. government could take to help them and their farms. At 38.4 percent, that response was a slight increase over last year. Congress is currently considering a measure to establish permanent normal trade relations with China, which is projected to boost U.S. farm exports to that nation by at least $1 billion annually.

A distant second (13.9 percent) was federal tax reform. Strengthening protection for property owners was third at 11.2 percent. Rounding out other choices with percentages higher than 5 percent were providing more financial assistance for beginning farmers (7.8 percent); federal regulatory reform (6.5 percent); provide countercyclical income support (6.1 percent); and monitor and enforce anti-trust laws related to agricultural concentration (5.1 percent).

Nearly two-thirds of the young farmers said once the current farm program expires, farm income should continue to be supplemented to some degree by the federal government (65.5 percent). Only 34.5 percent said farm income should come totally from the marketplace. That represents a near turnaround from just two years ago, when 66.8 percent said farm income should come only from the market. Last year, that response was evenly split.

The use of technology by young farmers and ranchers continues to skyrocket. Internet access among young farmers rose sharply to 77.2 percent, up a full 25 percentage points from last year. Figures show that nationally, only about 43 percent of American households are connected to the Internet. Just four years ago, only 10.5 percent of young farmers reported having Internet access.

Overall, computers are used on the farm by 90.7 percent of those surveyed, up 11 percentage points from 1999. While just 5.6 percent of respondents reported having their own Internet home page (2 percent in 1999), there was a 17.9 percentage-point jump in the number of young farmers who communicate through electronic mail (65.2 percent).

The use of cellular phones increased by 4.6 percentage points, to 87.4 percent of respondents, while more than one-fourth (25.5 percent) of the young farmers reported making online purchases using e-commerce. The use of computer online services (42.7 percent), fax machines (51.3 percent), pagers (16.9 percent), and home satellite dishes (36.1 percent) largely held steady.

Another technology area that increased was the number of young farmers who plant biotech crops or plan to do so within the next two years. This year's 59.3 percent response was the highest ever and 2.1 percentage points above last year. The use of global positioning systems and global information services, where satellite technology is used to plot precise field activities, saw an increase of 8 percentage points, to 23.5 percent.

Mirroring past surveys, this year's respondents reported a strong commitment to conservation and the use of environmentally beneficial farming practices. Nearly two-thirds (64.6 percent) said they employ conservation tillage on their farms. More than six out of 10 respondents (60.3 percent) said they regularly test soil or crop tissue prior to the application of nutrients, and 53.6 percent said they practice crop rotation with three or more crops. More than a third (38.4 percent) said they use integrated pest management techniques such as field scouting to reduce crop protectant use.

Regarding other practices, 28.8 percent regularly test their private well water; 24.5 percent use contour farming or strip cropping; 23.5 percent leave buffer strips to benefit wildlife; 23.2 percent have land enrolled in the conservation reserve program; and 16.2 percent owned wetland resources that they actively manage.

Approximately 95 percent of the young farmers surveyed said they select farming practices based on both the environment and economics. According to the survey, 74.7 percent said both with a slight emphasis on economics, while 19.9 percent said both with an emphasis on the environment. Those results generally mirror the findings from previous years.

This year's survey also reveals that young farmers employ a number of special management and marketing practices and services to gain a competitive edge. The most common was marketing information services, used by 51 percent of respondents. Second was the use of futures and options markets, which continues to rise at 49.7 percent, compared to 40.4 percent in 1999. Professional accounting services were third with 45.7 percent.

The use of professional crop consultants (40.1 percent), production of farm products through contract agreements (37.4 percent), and the use of marketing and management consultants (28.2 percent) held steady compared to 1999.

To supplement farm income, 71.3 percent of the young farmers surveyed said that they, their spouse, or both work off the farm. That's up from last year's 67.9 percent. From that group, wives were the sole source of off-farm income 61.2 percent of the time and husbands were the sole source 11.2 percent of the time. both spouses contributed to off-farm income in 27.7 percent of those cases. Of those young farmers reporting off-farm employment, 51 percent said the availability of health insurance was the primary reason.

Exports As Key

In addition to off-farm employment, 62.2 percent of the respondents said their farm income is supplemented by other farm-related enterprises such as custom work, truck driving and seed or supply sales.

According to the survey, 58.5 percent of the respondents started farming or ranching as a member of a family partnership, while 19.3 percent started on their own. While 13.6 percent said marriage led them to farm, only 8.6 percent reported that they inherited their farm or ranch.

When quizzed about their opinions regarding the public's attitude toward farmers and ranchers, 42.3 percent said they thought the public would weigh in positively, 23.5 percent said the public would respond negatively and 34.2 percent said they thought members of the public generally did not think about them at all.

Just 69.7 percent of the respondents said they were better off financially than they were five years ago – the lowest mark in survey history. Optimism also hit a survey record low, as just 52.9 percent (59.2 percent in 1999) said they are more optimistic about farming than they were five years ago.

Despite those numbers, more of the young farmers said they planned on being farmers for life, 94.2 percent compared to last year's 92 percent. Fewer, however, (90.2 percent) said they would like to see their children follow in their footsteps, compared to last year's 91.7 percent

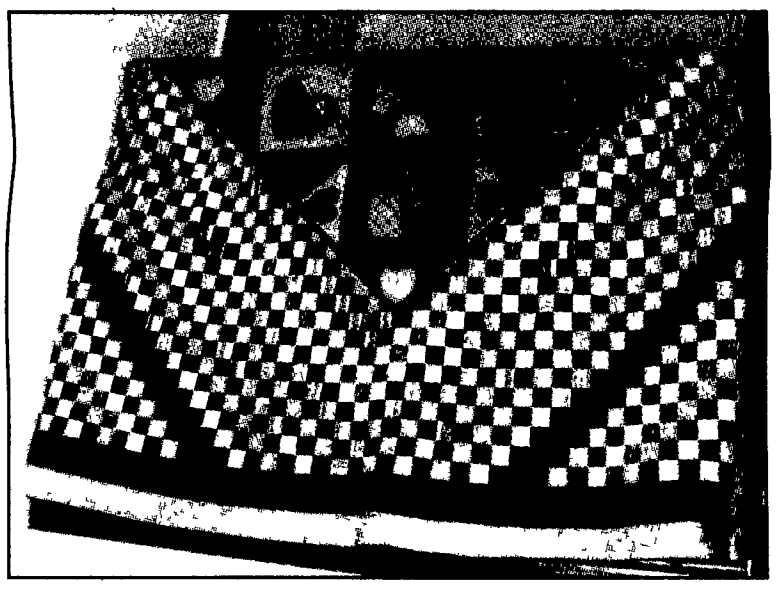
This quilt is one that Elva begin working on years ago, but had someone else finish. The time-consuming process for constructing the "cathedral window" coverlet contains no quilting but involves hand piecing many fabrics.



Elva has resold hundreds of quilts from her collection obtained through auctions and consignments. This "postage stamp" quilt hangs in her foyer. She sold more than 100 quilts, 100 porcelain dolls, hundreds of dishes, and other antiques before moving into the new house.

Stauffer Home Open For Ephrata Kitchen Kaper

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — For years, Elva Stauffer took advantage of home tours to garner ideas for building her own home. Last year, she and her husband built an expansive Cape Cod on their farm. Now she is opening her home for the Ephrata Women's Club 13th annual Kitchen Kaper on May 1.

The popular tour is always a sell-out because it offers a combination of ideas for every homemaker. Not only are the homes open for tour, but at each home a different restaurant provides food for tour participants and an area florist arranges stunning displays to coordinate with the decor.

Some homes feature collections and antiques, and Elva's home is no exception. On display will be her collections of old quilts, dolls, and cast iron dogs.

Elva said that "sales are in my blood." She inherited the "auction bug" from her dad, who operated a weekly horse and cow sale. One of 11 children, Elva said that she learned to cook and sew at an early age. Her entrepreneurship surfaced when she was only 14 and began a small restaurant to serve soup, sandwiches, and baked items at her dad's auction site in New Holland.

"When I married and moved to Ephrata, I missed my restaurant," Elva said.

She quickly became immersed in helping her husband on the farm. They had cows, chickens, and sold produce at a roadside stand. Elva also began holding Stanley demonstrations and is now in her 45th year with the company. The couple had three children. Now adults, son Clark is the fifth generation Stauffer to farm the home place. Ronald operates Cloister Restaurant with his mother, and daughter Shirley lives in Canada.

Elva and her husband purchased the Cloister Restaurant 27 years ago. At that time, Clark took over the farming operation, which allowed Elva and her husband to work the long hours required in the restaurant business. The restaurant is well known for its authentic Pennsylvania Dutch cooking such as pig stomach and snitz and knepp.

When the Stauffers acquired the restaurant, they thought it best if someone on the premise knew CPR and First Aid in case a patron was injured. Elva took the training.

After Elva completed training, she said, "They asked me to run with the ambulance."

She did.

Last Saturday night, she received a plaque in appreciation for volunteering 20 years with the ambulance service.

For 20 years, Elva placed children in local homes through the Fresh Air program. She is no longer involved in that, but she does have two Ethiopian students living with her on weekends throughout the school year.

Elva is a member for Lancaster County Farm Women Society 3 and of the Hinkletown Mennonite Church.

Elva said that her home was built after her husband became ill and could no longer manage steps. Three weeks after they moved in, he died. Many readers of this paper remember her husband, Aaron, who was well known for his farm research on ground water and conservation practices. Tour groups from

The Stauffer home was built on the farm, which has been in the family for almost 100 years. Elva said that she used many of the ideas in designing the home from those she toured in previous years. Now she is reciprocating by opening her home during the annual Kitchen Kaper Tour, May 1.

Ephrata Woman's Club To Hold 13th Annual Kitchen Kaper Tulip Tour

Monday, May 1, 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. the Woman's Club of Ephrata will conduct its popular kitchen/house tour and craft show. The Tour includes two bed and breakfast homes. Four private homes, and the Eicher Arts Center. Local restaurant chefs will offer samples of their fare at each of the homes and floral decor will be displayed by florists and decorators.

Tickets for the Tour, for all ages including children, are $8 in advance by contacting Marti Nissley (717) 859-2847 or Edith Graff (717) 336-4719. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed business-size envelope, along with payment. Tickets on the day of the tour are $10 and are available at the Church of the Brethren, 201 Crescent Ave., Ephrata. The club advises visitors to wear comfortable walking shoes. No high heels, cameras or baby carriages will be allowed. A listing of places open for tour include the following:

• Craft Show at Ephrata Church of the Brethren, 201 Crescent Ave. Among the beautiful hand-crafted items will be redstone pottery, hand-painted porcelain, silk flower arrangements, framed designs etched on black painted aluminum, Scherschnitte paper cuttings, antique button jewelry, hand-designed T-shirts, semi-precious stone jewelry, country crafts, astronomical photographs, and various crafts made by young people in TRACK.

• Jeff and Cindy Rutt, 954 Lincoln Hgts. Ave. A moderate, contemporary, brick and taupe house is a true home for the millennium. The open-end architecture of the interior with high ceilings, hardwood and tile floors and exterior walls of many windows, give much light. This is a home of the future. A step-down family room and a step-up computer room are both visible from the living room and kitchen. Beige wood cabinetry encircles a working island with all the newest appliances. A lighted cabinet containing antique salt cellars and ink wells, a collection of Cindy's grandmother's, are points of interest. Lily's on Main, Main St., will serve in the kitchen. Brossman's Flower and Gift Shop, 30 E. Main, is the floral decorator.

• Thomas and Julie Wettach, 1173 Marilyn Ave. The summer of 1998, Dutch Quality Contractors refurbished the original Dutch Colonial house to a more contemporary home. The interior open-end architecture was built around the one remaining room, the living room. The kitchen with light oak cabinets and an island, all new appliances, the sun room, with window walls, and the dining room all flow through to each other. Two open gas fireplaces add heat and enjoyment to the newly-refurbished rooms. Cloister Sweets, 7 Dutchland Ave., will serve in the kitchen. Esbenshade's Greenhouse, 546A E. Division Hwy., Lititz, will do the floral arrangements.

• Twin Pine Bed & Breakfast, 1934 Main St. Innkeepers Harold and Sylvia Stoltzfus will welcome you to Norman Kurtz's recently-opened, elegant Bed & Breakfast,. Twin Pine Farm established the Kurtz homestead in 1939 by Norm's father, Moses. Resembling a Swiss chalet, the home continued renovation and expansion. Currently, the mansion contains 20 rooms appointed with antique furniture, artifacts from the Kurtz farm, seven gas fireplaces. Many more beautiful points of interest include a scenic view, from the top deck, of thirty-five farms. The Olde Lincoln House, 1398 W. Main, will provide the food. Floral decor will be by Anita Yoder, of Heritage Design Interior, 872 E. Main, New Holland.

• Eicher Arts Center, Ephrata Park, Restored in 1983, the Arts Center was originally the Sisters House of the Cloisters. This historic building provides a forum which enables the citizens of the area to participate in various cultural activities Tour participants are invited to stop, rest and enjoy cookies and coffee. Flowers are presented by the Arts Center Volunteers.

• Michael and Nancy Sensenig, 1032 Clearview Ave. Home to the Sensenig family for one year, the architectural structure of this home is "Farm House Style." The interior mirrors this style with its country kitchen, where an antique cupboard holds a Pfaltzgraff collection. The home is decorated in soothing colors of country blue and mauve. Isaac's Restaurant, in the Cloister Shopping Center will present the food and Black Iris Design, 108 E. Main provides the decor.

Perk Up Peaked Plants Affected By Poor Indoor Care

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Do those robust, leafy plants you brought in last fall now look as drained and droopy as an accountant after tax season? Chances are you need to adjust your indoor plant care, says a gardening specialist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Robert Nuss, professor of ornamental horticulture, said that indoor plant problems often have recognizable symptoms that can be alleviated easily and inexpensively.

Root rot. Nuss rates root rot as the most common problem for indoor plants. "Overwatering is the main cause," Nuss says. "Avoid using heavy soils that drain slowly and use containers with a drain hole in the bottom."

Nuss suggests using light potting soils or vermiculite to allow for proper drainage.

Nutrient deficiencies. If indoor plant foliage appears to be pale green or light green, the plant has not received enough nitrogen. "Applying fertilizer every month to two months should make up for any nutrient deficiency," Nuss says.

Spotting a potash (or phosphorus) deficiency is more difficult. Occasionally, leaf edges may turn brown and die.

Wilted or drying leaves. In winter, humidity levels drop, a condition that turns indoor environments hot and dry as homeowners seal windows and crank up heating systems. Dried stems and leaves are a sure sign of too-dry air.

Group plants together or place them in trays filled with pebbles and water. Keep the water level just below the surface of the pebbles, preventing root saturation.

Spindly growth or off-color foliage. Light yellow foliage or thin winter growth may be caused by a lack of light. The solution is simple — place plants near a bright window. Adding additional light near the plant will help as well.

White, or yellowish crust on soil surface. Unabsorbed mineral salts from fertilizer or hard water can accumulate on the soil surface or plant stems. These salts, toxic to roots and plant stems, can be eliminated by leaching. Nuss says soil is leached when about 10 percent of the applied water passes through the drain holes in a plant container. Excess water that drains through the container should be thrown out.

Plant soil should be leached once a month throughout the year.

Pot-bound plants. Stunted or low-quality foliage can be caused by too many roots. Nuss recommends removing the plant from the pot to inspect root growth. If there is a large number of roots circling the potting soil, the plant must be repotted. Tightly matted roots can be loosened by cutting the circling pattern that has formed in the old pot.

Make four to six vertical cuts into the roots from the top to the bottom of the root mass. The new pot should be several inches wider and deeper than the old one. Don't move the plant into a very large pot, either. Excess root growth still will reduce the quality of foliage.

Her collection of dolls include these. One doll sits on an old wooden tricycle Elva found at a garage sale.

Easter Baskets For A Healthy Bunny

Easter is a time to rejoice the coming of spring. It's a time to allow senses to become refreshed with bright colors and fresh air after a long winter. It's no wonder that the perfect Easter basket is one stuffed with rich and exotic colors, bright and cheery reminders of the approaching secrets of spring. Unfortunately, for most of us–and especially children–Easter can also be a time of over-indulgence in candies, chocolates, and other sweets.

So what is a health-conscious bunny to do? How can parents provide a fun and meaningful holiday, replete with Easter baskets and hidden egg hunts, without putting children into sugar overload?

A typical Easter basket, stuffed with chocolate bunnies, marshmallow eggs, jelly beans, and foil-wrapped chocolate eggs, can have more than 2000 calories and 100 grams of fat. With a little creativity, that same basket can be packed with just as much fun, but with half the calories and twice the nutritional power.

The first key to a fun and healthy Easter is creativity. The second key is moderation. This means including a few of your child's favorite traditional treats in the Easter basket, and using your creativity to round out the basket with such nutritious food and interesting non-food items such as those suggested below.

• Instead of jelly beans, fill plastic eggs with peanuts, raisins, and shelled sunflower seeds. Mixed together, this combination is known as GORPS (Good old raisins, peanuts, and sunflower seeds).

• Other good plastic egg fillers include a few grapes, animal or graham cracker cookies, popcorn and mini pretzels.

• Bunnies like carrots, and so do children. Look for mini-carrots in single serving packages in your supermarket's produce department These make a colorful addition to Easter baskets.

• Other colorful basket stuffers include fruit roll-ups, a box of fruit juice, grapes, and other assorted fruits.

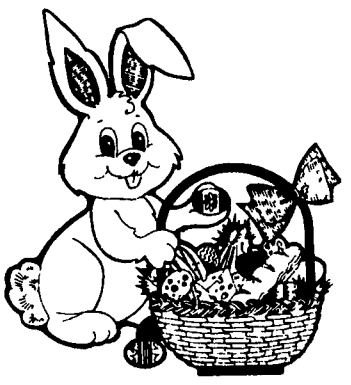
• With a little creativity–and raisins, mini-marshmallows, fruit leather, and peanut butter–apples and pears can be transformed into Easter mascots just waiting to become healthful snacks.

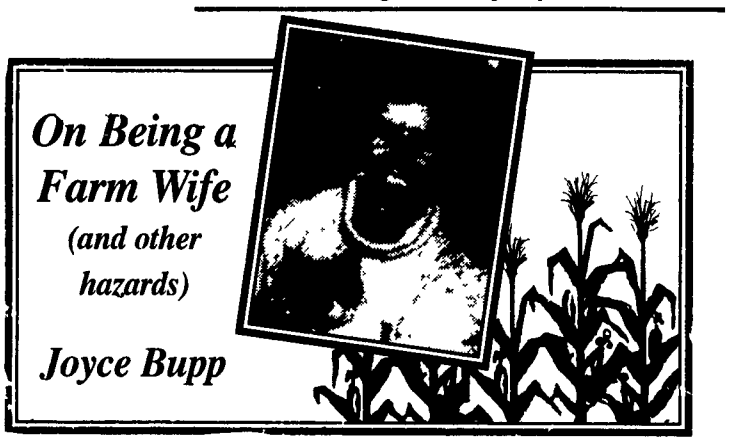
• Easter can be a great time to introduce your child to a new or unusual food. Kiwi fruit, with its fuzzy skin and bright green flower-pattern inside, makes a perfect egg-shaped surprise. Since the Kiwi bird is New Zealand's national bird and kiwi fruit is its national fruit, a story about kiwi eggs is not too far-fetched.

• Emphasize non-food items. How about a pocket-sized book, box of crayons, or Play-Doh?

• Nestle colorful packets of vegetable seeds in your child's basket, and make plans to start them in a garden box on your window sill.

Finally, good old-fashioned hard-boiled eggs are high in protein and fun for kids to eat. Beautifully decorated Easter eggs are still a healthy bet for most children. Make sure your eggs are well cooked and refrigerated. Hide plastic eggs and allow children to trade one in for a colored egg from the fridge when they're ready to eat it.





Cross paths with someone from another part of the country, and immediately following introductions, there will be an inevitable questions.

"Where're you from?"

The response when you share that you live in southcentral Pennsylvania is, I've discovered, almost universal.

"Ooohhh, that's a really pretty area."

Yes, thank you very much, it is indeed. A very pretty area. And we're quite proud of it, too.

Each season hereabouts brings its own special beauty. Summer is rich with the colors of green, growing corn and golden grain waving in the breeze. Autumn glows with the reds, beiges, rich browns, golds and everything in between splashed over the fencerows and hardwood stands of the area woodlots. Winter is more subtle in shading, hues of somber greens and muted browns, blanketed periodically with pristine snow or glittering coats of ice.

But spring – especially now in mid-April - is our debutante season, young and fresh and eager to embrace new life. Its pastel loveliness is gently stroked by warming breezes, bringing promises of planting and the bustle of accompanying preparations.

A bevy of blooms burst from bulbs tucked earlier in the ground, dormant for months as they made preparation to bring forth the start of a new generation. Flowers are so beautiful that it's sometimes hard for me to remember that they are merely the delivery vehicle, the initial form of the seed capsule which will ultimately regenerate more of the same

Or maybe more of something different, depending on what those flowers are fertilized with by their random encounters with Mother Nature's pollination army of bees and bugs.

Regardless, the seasonal parade of blooms gets well under way in spring (early this year with our extra warm weather) with clusters of daffodils in yellow and whites, the crayon-box brilliant tulips and pastel ovals of fragrant hyacinths.

While Washington, D.C., makes a tourist celebration of the blooming of the cherry trees, we probably take for granted the loveliness of our flowering hillside of orchards. The variety of fruit trees cultivated here–from apricots and nectarines to peaches, pears and apples – produce a parade of several-weeks-worth of consecutive blossoming as each bursts into color to attract the pollinating insects.

Flowering ornamentals add to the beauty of the area, from the showy, snowy-white of the pears, to the weeping cherries, to crabapples, enhancing the lawns and backyards in which folks around here take particular pride. While their petals are cascading to cover the grass beneath, white and purple lilacs are already pushing out pudgy blossom clusters perfumed with a delicious fragrance

Even the hardwoods are decked out in spring finery, as they send out modest blooms and infant leaves, mostly in shades of pale greens and reds Their delicate, fledgling leaves dress the woods in a wispy, hazy look for several days, before swelling to the full-size and deeper colors of maturity.

Meadows and pastures have turned green with recent rains and warming sunshine, tempting the cows and heifers to come, munch their fill, then stretch out a spell to chew their cuds. It's a personal thing I know, but what could be more of a peaceful, pastoral scene than a herd of cows lolling around a meadow of lush green grass?

Except maybe for a flock of sheep with a couple of lambs dancing around – curly-coated, stiff-legged, spring-loaded babies leaping into the air with the sheer joy of being alive

Look over any rural vista in mid-April and it's easy to agree with folks around the country

We are blessed with beautiful, rural, picturesque countrysides

Let's hope we can find the means – quickly – to make certain what's left stays that way

Spreads With Pizzazz

The difference between gourmet dining and everyday fare is most noticeable in the small details. The unique sauce strewed across the sauteed chicken breast, the house salad dressing, and the butter spread with a tinge of "what is that secret ingredient?"

It's details such as these that make dining at upscale restaurants a memorable occasion. You can duplicate many of these touches in your own cooking. Transform everyday fare into a delightful experience. Search for recipes that are easy yet contain an unexpectant ingredient. Start with this collection of bread spreads. Ordinary butter can be transformed by adding a sprinkle of your favorite herbs, a touch of your preserves or honey.

Why stick to traditional mayonnaise when adding Dijon mustard and horseradish perks up a homemade turkey sandwich?

Combine yogurt with your favorite chopped veggies for another sandwich idea.

Caring for the Caregiver

Being the primary or a supportive caregiver for an elderly person can be very rewarding but it also has its share of challenges. Many recipients of care really appreciate all you do and respond lovingly. You have the feeling that you have done your best for someone you care about.

Take that same caregiver and sprinkle on a little guilt, spread some frustration, slice time in half, and you'll have the unsavory predicament facing the sandwich generation.

Coined for the growing number of Americans who are taking care of their aging parents and their children at the same time, the Sandwich Generation, as well as older caregivers, often finds that taking care of themselves gets shoved to the back burner.

Women in particular find themselves in the role of caregiver, whether by choice, instinct or process of elimination. Of all caregivers, almost 80 percent are women, and more than half of those women are in the workforce. Already juggling the demands of career and family, these women add yet another layer to the Super Woman Syndrome.

It is not always easy to be the caregiver. We are often so intertwined with the person we are caring for, it's difficult not to bury our own needs in the caregiving process.

Many of us have been brought up with the idea that it is far more blessed to give than to receive. It is physically exhausting to put another's needs first for years on end. It's mentally fatiguing to be constantly on call to give medications, schedule doctors' appointments, and run a household at the same time.

The loss of "what once was" in a relationship emotionally and physically is painful for both partners. Research studies have shown that family caregivers are at high risks for developing stress related problems. Studies find high rates of depression among caregivers, high levels of anxiety, and increased vulnerability to health problems.

Caregivers often feel powerlessness, a sense that they have no control over events. Feeling powerless has a significant negative impact on a caregiver's physical and emotional health.

The Mayo Clinic of Rochester offers the following suggestions to all caregivers, whether dealing with chronic or non chronic illness: Identify the stressors in your caregiving role. What tasks or behaviors are most frustrating or anxiety-producing?

Think through and plan your responses to these stressful situations. Learn and practice stress management techniques. Relaxation exercises such as deep breathing, visualization, as well as physical exercise, can be helpful. Get adequate rest.

Recognize that caregiving is stressful. Don't be hard on yourself when you experience impatience, frustration, sadness, or anger. These are natural emotions when caring for someone who may be unhappy, ungrateful, or difficult.

Be willing to walk away from difficult situations to calm down. Return later and try a new approach.

Set realistic goals regarding what and how much you can do for your loved one.

Take one day at a time. Try not to worry about what might happen when you have planned the best you can.

Be good to yourself. Give yourself frequent praise and rewards for your patience and endurance. Say nice things to yourself when the person you are caring for no longer can.

Use your sense of humor-continue to have fun.

Maintain your own physical, emotional, and spiritual health. Find sources for personal satisfaction. Cultivate some emotional detachment.

In addition to keeping your stress level in line, check with your local Area Agency of Aging, local hospital or home health agency, American Cancer Society, Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Associations for community support.

If you are the friend of a caregiver, you can provide invaluable help by being a good listener or by checking on services in your area. Offering to come and be with the older person for a few hours on a regular basis could really make a difference in how your caregiver friend can cope. Remind the caregiver often that if they get enough exercise, rest and take time for themselves, they will be a better caregiver!

Infant Brain Development

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) – Early experiences are important in shaping a child's brain development, and an upcoming satellite videoconference will tell Dauphin County parents and child care providers what they can do to insure the best outcomes.

In "What Brain Research Tells Us About Infant Care," host James Van Horn, professor of rural sociology in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, will discuss with guests, Karen Lindbergh and Christine Murphy, the different types of care infants need at different ages. They'll also look at making feeding, diapering, and sleeping more than routine chores for infants by fostering quality interactions.

According to Jane Mecum, Penn State Cooperative Extension family living agent in Dauphin County, the program looks to present child care providers with new ways to make caring routines valuable experiences for infants. "We will discuss how appropriate care practices like diapering, feeding and playing change with the age of the infant, she says. "We also want to demonstrate appropriate verbal and non-verbal communication with an infant."

Child care providers and interested parents can see "What Brain Research Tells Us About Infant Care" from 7:00-9:00 on Tuesday, April 18, at the Valleys United Church of Christ, Halifax, or 7:00-9:00 on Monday, May 1, at Penn State Capitol Campus Educational Activities Building, Middletown.

The one-and-a-half hour satellite workshop is part of Better Kid Care, a nationwide training program reaching an estimated 35,000 childcare providers throughout the United States and Canada. The program, which is delivered in conjunction with Penn State Cooperative Extension family living agents, provides education materials, learning experiences and satellite training workshops for child care providers, parents and employers.

For more information on the program, support materials and other services from "BETTER KID CARE," call Dauphin County Cooperative Extension at 921-8803. The BETTER KID CARE Website can be found a http://BetterKid Care.psu.edu/newtoc.html.

Penn State is an affirmative action, equal opportunity university, and all interested individuals, regardless of race, color, sex, national origin, sexual orientation, age or disability, are encouraged to attend. Penn State encourages persons with disabilities to participate in its programs and activities. If you anticipate needing any type of accommodation or have questions about the physical access provided, please contact Jane Mecum at (717) 921-8803 at least three weeks in advance of your participation or visit.

Far Infrared Rays (FIR) Health Builder

Within the magnetic spectrum, while some rays, such as light, can be seen by the unaided human eye, most are totally invisible to us. Far Infrared Rays (FIR) are well beyond the ability of the naked eye to see. FIR is capable of penetrating deep into the human body. It can gently and delightfully elevate the body's temperature When it does so, it helps to expand capillaries which stimulates blood circulation. This increases the body's energy reserve, and accelerates the metabolic exchange between blood and body tissue. That's not all! FIR can actually increase the body tissue's regenerative ability It also reduces abnormalities in nervous system and helps the autonomous system function properly.

Cherry Ice Cream

¾ cup cold water
4 cups milk
2 cups sugar, scant
½ teaspoon almond extract
1 cup sweet, dark cherries, halved, pitted
2 cups juice from home-canned cherries
1 cup cream

Soak gelatine in cold water. Set aside. Heat milk to boiling point. Remove from heat, stir in gelatine, sugar, and almond flavoring. Stir well. When cool, add cherry juice, cherries, and cream. Chill in refrigerator five hours or overnight. Churn about 25 minutes. Makes one gallon.

Note: If you don't have cherry juice, increase cream to three cups and almond flavoring to one teaspoon.

ANSWER — Julie Ann Harris had requested a recipe for tiramisu. According to the response, there are several different recipes. Both require mascarpone, which is a rich Italian cheese sold in most major supermarkets. Here is a recipe from G. Minckle.

Tiramisu

24 Italian ladyfingers or Genoise
1½ cups expresso, cooled
6 eggs, separated
1 pound mascarpone cheese
3 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons marsala
2 tablespoons triple sec
2 tablespoons brandy
1 teaspoon orange extract
8-ounces bittersweet chocolate, chopped

Dip 12 ladyfingers quickly into expresso. Arrange on a flat serving platter in a row.

Mix the yolks with sugar until pale. Add mascarpone, liqueurs and extract. Stir to mix thoroughly.

Beat whites until stiff, but not dry. Fold whites into mascarpone mixture. Spread half of mascarpone mixture on top of ladyfingers. Sprinkle with half the chopped chocolate. Dip the remaining ladyfingers in remaining expresso. Repeat layering with ladyfingers and remaining mascarpone mixture. Sprinkle with remaining chocolate. Cover lightly with foil and refrigerate an hour or overnight. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

Note: If American ladyfingers are used, they should be toasted at 375 degrees for 15 minutes until dry.

Here is another recipe from Sharon Lorenzo, Catawissa.

Tiramisu

8-ounces mascarpone cheese
⅓ cup granulated sugar
3 tablespoons coffee liquer
1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
1½ cups heavy cream
24 ladyfingers
1 cup strong brewed coffee
3-ounces semisweet chocolate, grated
1 tablespoon confectioners' sugar

In large bowl, with electric mixer on medium speed, beat together mascarpone cheese and granulated sugar. Beat in coffee liqueur and vanilla.

In medium bowl, with mixer on medium speed, beat cream until stiff peaks form. Fold whipped cream into mascarpone mixture.

In glass baking dish just large enough to hold half the ladyfingers in one layer, about 11x7-inches, arrange half the ladyfingers on the bottom. Sprinkle them with half the coffee. Spoon half the mascarpone mixture over ladyfingers. Sprinkle with half the grated chocolate. Arrange remaining ladyfingers over mascarpone layer. Sprinkle with remaining coffee. Spoon remaining mascarpone mixture on top. Sprinkle with remaining grated chocolate.

Cover and refrigerate at least four hours, preferably overnight. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar before serving.

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

My husband is out and about again. He dug 60 holes to replace some asparagus plants. Then he dug 10 big holes for blueberry bushes. He also sprayed all of our fruit trees.

I have planted the garden and carried the rocking chairs from the basement to the front porch. And, I've cleaned the large play area in the basement in anticipation of several families coming to visit at the same time.

There is something waiting for the grandchildren. Our spare bed is covered with stuffed toys and dolls. Their former owners have outgrown them and so the younger grandchildren will have an opportunity to enjoy them In addition to outgrowing them, the family is planning to move from Virginia to Delaware. Our children do not seem to dread moving as much as I would

We had a different experience the other Saturday night. We were invited to go bowling. This is something that we had not done for many years. The place we went to was very different from the smoke-filled one when I bowled many years ago. At that time, I was the only woman in the place.

This time we had six small children along with us. They ranged in age from three to nine years old Some of them carried the heavy ball to the line and dropped it Others lay it down carefully and then gave it a push. One little fellow seemed to have a knack for bowling and got a higher score then we adults. Times surely do change!

Food Safety Training

Penn State Cooperative Extension is offering a two-hour food safety and sanitation training for 4-H food handlers on June 24 from 9:30 a.m. to 12 p.m. at the Allied Services Community Room, off of Rte. 307 in Scranton. The program includes discussion on safe food preparation, cooking temperatures, handwashing techniques, and cross contamination.

Approximately 76 million people suffer from foodborne illnesses each year. Of those, 325,000 require hospitalization, and 5,000 die. These unfortunate incidents were the result of poor food handling.

Many of us are involved in handling food at various 4-H functions. No matter what kind of food we are working with, we all need to know and practice safe food handling techniques to prevent foodborne illness.

Registration, coffee, and networking begins at 9:30 a.m. The program runs from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m.

USDA Proposes Fee Increase For Plant Protection

WASHINGTON, D.C. – The USDA proposes to increase the Plant Variety Protection Office's fees for plant variety protection certificates.

Kathleen Merrigan, administrator of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, said, "The fee increase will affect all applicants for Plant Variety Protection Certificates. The fee increase is necessary to reduce operating losses and maintain the fiscal stability of this important program."

Major factors contributing to the need for the fee changes include increased employee salaries and supply costs. Current fees have been in effect since 1995.

The proposal will raise the application fee from $300 to $320, the search fee from $2,150 to $2,385, and the issuance fee from $300 to $320. It will also increase the fees for reviving an abandoned application, or correction or re-issuance of a certificate, from $300 to $320. The charge for granting an extension for responding to a request will increase from $50 to $55. The hourly charge for any other service not specified will increase from $60 to $66.

The fee increase proposal was scheduled to be published in the Federal Register on March 15. Comments should be received no later than April 14, and should be sent to Ann Marie Thro, Commissioner, Plant Variety Protection Office, Rm. 500 N.A.L. Building, 10301 Baltimore Blvd., Beltsville, MD 20705.

The Lowdown On Skateboards

What started as rolling down hills on a piece of wood with wheels is now a lot more From leaps to turns to difficult flips, today's skateboarder does a lot on a little piece of wood

But it s really much more than just a piece of wood The skateboard has three main parts—the deck, wheels and trucks

The flat standing surface of the skateboard is the deck It is usually made from maple wood The wheels are usually made from a material called polyurethane They range from 39 to 66 millimeters across, which would be about 1 5 to 2 6 inches The trucks are the front and rear axle assemblies They connect the wheels to the board and allow the board to turn

The front of the skateboard is called the nose, which runs from the front trucks to the front end The tail, or back, of the skateboard runs from the back trucks to the back Plastic strips that attach to a board's underside are called rails, which is also the edge of a skateboard

The places people skateboard have changed, too. Skateboarding on streets, curbs and railings is known as street skating, skateboarding on ramps and vertical structures built for skateboarding is called vert skating.

Garden Hobbyists Become Educators

NEWARK, Del. – "Beware of the aphids," Jay Windsor, cooperative extension agricultural agent for the University of Delaware in Sussex County, cautions 25 wide-eyed students working on their certification as Master Gardeners. "Aphids do not need a male to reproduce. They bear live young and the young reproduce almost immediately."

What this means, Windsor explains, is that if a single aphid and all its offspring multiply and live, "within one year's time, they would cover the earth to a depth of one foot."

With this announcement, Windsor has the complete attention of the class gathered indoors on a rainy day at the UD Research and Education Center (REC) in Georgetown. The Master Gardeners class meets for three hours, twice a week, for 10 weeks to complete the 60 hours of required training on all aspects of growing plants and keeping them healthy. The topics range from pest control and composting to the gardener's role in helping to protect the environment.

"A special emphasis of the training is to impress upon students the importance of vigilance," explains Windsor, who is assistant coordinator of the Master Gardeners program. "By scouting the landscape and monitoring plants, you often can nip problems like aphids in the bud."

Maggie Moor-Orth, lead program coordinator for the Master Gardeners Program in Kent and Sussex Counties, says this program is intended for people who have "an interest in gardening and the time to volunteer."

As Extension agricultural agent for the Delaware State University, Moor-Orth co-teaches the certification classes with Windsor.

"Our students love learning new skills, then sharing their knowledge with others," she says.

Helen Williams of Georgetown, for example, is newly retired from teaching and loves gardening.

"I was looking for another field to teach in and share information, and I'm learning so much" she says, adding that she hopes to help with the landscaping of the Georgetown library.

Karin Smith of Dover can scarcely contain her exuberance, which appears to be contagious among her classmates.

"This program is so much fun! I've been wanting to this for years."

"I got into gardening because I like cooking with herbs, but herbs are so expensive to buy," Smith says. "I live in a development that doesn't allow vegetable gardens so I've been mixing herbs into my landscaping and no one can even tell. Lavender, thyme, and basil are beautiful additions to the landscape, for example, and they are so easy to grow, too."

A newcomer to Delaware, Ilya Myers called Windsor to learn how to take care of the roses she wanted to plant. He invited her to participate in the Master Gardeners program.

"I wanted to learn more about gardening techniques in this climate, and this program is perfect," she says. Myers hopes to help care for the flower garden around the circle in Georgetown, where she now lives.

According to Moor-Orth and Windsor, the Delaware Master Gardener's program began in 1986. The certification coursework is scheduled for the fall of every other year in Sussex and Kent Counties and for the spring of every other year in New Castle County. In return for the comprehensive training, the Master Gardeners give back 45 hours of volunteer service the first year, then 25 to 30 hours every year thereafter.

"This is a great program and a super group", says Windsor, "Working with these people has come to be an important part of my job."

Moore-Orth says the Master Gardeners become involved in the program with the intention of volunteering for Cooperative Extension," but they evolve into so much more than a volunteer."

"They become educators instead," she explains. "It's wonderful to watch that happen." If you have a gardening question, please call your county Extension office between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. Gardening inquiries are answered within 24 hours whenever possible. To reach Maggie Moor-Orth directly, please call (302) 875-6426

Master Gardeners Betty Boettger, Irma Leidig, and Jacque Johnson combine gardening interests with teaching skills.

George Sparrow uses his master gardener training to help educate others on growing healthy plants.

Estate Planning

MONTROSE (Susquehanna Co.)- An area of business management that is frequently overlooked is estate planning. Owners are so busy with the day-to-day operation of businesses that they don't think about what changes may occur in the future There are several good reasons to consider estate planning regardless of age: to plan for your family's welfare, to make sure things are done the way you want them to be done, and to lower or eliminate inheritance taxes.

On May 3, Susquehanna County Cooperative Extension will offer an Estate Planning Workshop. This program is for all small businesses, both farm and non-farm. Areas addressed include types of title transfers, wills and living trusts, tax-free transfers, State inheritance taxes, and federal estate and gift tax laws

The Estate Planning workshop will be held in the County Office Building, 31 Public Avenue, Montrose, from 10 00 a m to 3 00 p.m on May 3. The cost of the program is $10 which covers lunch Reservations can be made by calling the Extension office at (570-) 278-1158.

Rid Your Home Of Pesty Pests

SANDY BRADLEY
Mercer Co. Correspondent

GROVE CITY (Mercer Co.) - As the days grow longer and grass begins to grow, many open their doors and drapes to welcome the freshness that comes with spring. Along with the lilies and daffodils come other signs of recent life: A host of insects and animal pests.

What are these pests? Where do they come from? How do we get them out of our homes?

Among the most common summer pests, said Mercer County extension agent Gary Micsky, are the big and little brown bats that often occupy barns and attics. Usually hibernating in caves during winter, the bats emerge in spring, seeking places to bear their young One reason attics are so desirable is the temperature gradients they offer to bats: air that ranges from very warm to cool and breezy is the most desirable for the maternity colonies, which roost in daylight hours and exit at night to feed on insects.

With the ability to penetrate openings as small as a nickel, the bats have little trouble moving in and out of many attics-especially in situations where slate roofing, chimneys, and siding have begun to come loose. Once inside the attics, it is fairly easy for bats to also end up in the family living space. As a result, Micsky said that in summer months he receives on average five calls per day from people who want to get rid of these "guests."

Micsky tells callers that despite the myths that bats will land in and stick to your hair, the mammals will usually leave the house within about ten minutes if contained in a room with an open window. Although they have occasionally been known to carry rabies, it is not too likely that homeowners will contract the disease from association with bats. In fact, it is more likely that homeowners will encounter rabies through dogs and other family pets.

An important thing to remember, however, is that bats eat a variety of undesirable insects like mosquitoes, cucumber beetles, stinkbugs, and other agricultural and garden pests. Since a single bat will eat as many as 500 insects per hour (or 3,000 per night), it is more beneficial for homeowners to relocate the colonies than to exterminate.

Bat boxes can be built and mounted on barns and houses, and the relocation is best done after June and July, when baby bats reside in the attics. During this time the pups are not yet airborne. They would be trapped and die in the attics if entry points were sealed. Although this would reduce the bat population, sealing the entry points in June or July could result in odor problem from decaying bats in the attics.

Homeowners can obtain literature and information on batproofing, exclusion, and relocation from their local extension agents, said Micsky. They also have lists of exclusion professionals for those who don't want to tackle the job themselves.

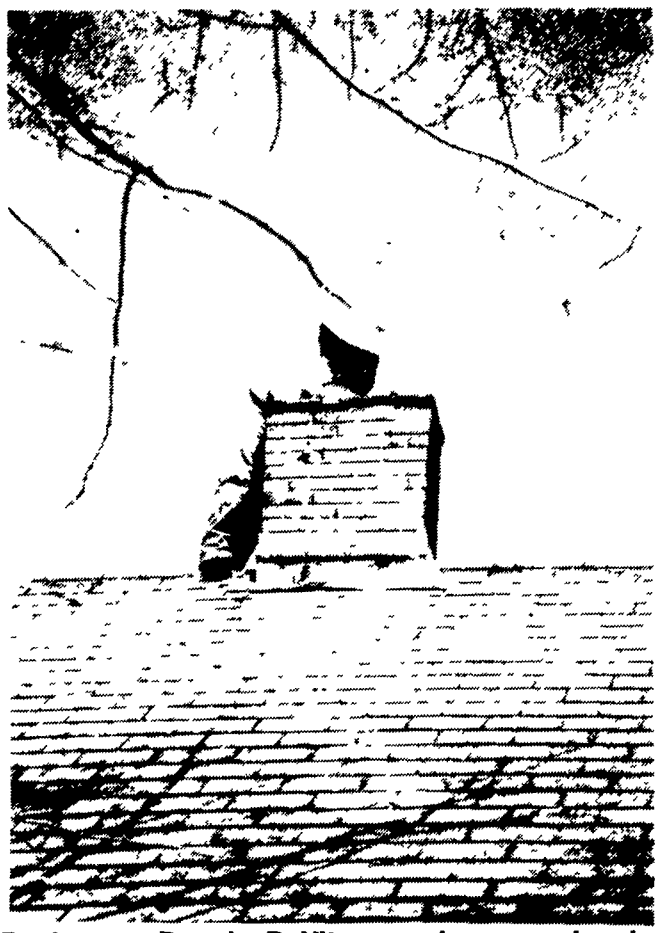
In addition to bat calls, some of the more common pest calls to Micsky are about hornets and wasps, which also benefit man by destroying harmful insect pests. Both species build nests in trees and shrubs as well as under eaves, behind shutters, and on and around porch areas-and both can usually be controlled with store-bought dusts or aerosol treatments.

Most literature recommends spraying the nests after dark, since by that time most of the hornets and wasps have returned to the nest and are less active than during the day.

Sometimes these species nest in walls, which make them more difficult to eliminate. In these cases it is often necessary to locate the nests by pounding on the walls until a buzzing reply sound is heard-then boring holes in walls in order to spray with a pesticide. It is also possible to use dusts around the flight holes of these hornet and wasp populations as a way of extermination. Often professional exterminators are necessary to eliminate insects nesting in walls.

Other types of bees such as bumble bees, carpenter bees, and honeybees also set up housekeeping close to areas inhabited by people. Bumble bees and carpenter bees can be dealt with in much the same way as wasps and hornets. However honey bees often require the help of a professional exterminator or bee keeper to help remove the hive and its contents. Since honeybees provide valuable services in their plant pollination and production of honey, often local beekeepers are anxious to remove and transport the bees and hives. If not dealt with properly, hives left in the wall can attract more bees and other insects as well as emit an odor as they deteriorate. Honeybee hives should not be left in walls or chimneys.

For more information about these and other pests, contact your local Penn State extension agent.



Beekeeper Dennis DeVito examines an abandoned hive that is lodged in this chimney. The hive, he decides, is too heavy to lift from the chimney, but must be knocked down and retrieved from the first floor fireplace.

Wildlife pest control operator Dan Lews and beekeeper Dennis DeVito have successfully completed a bat and bee removal job on the same house. The two men work in the area surrounding Mercer County.

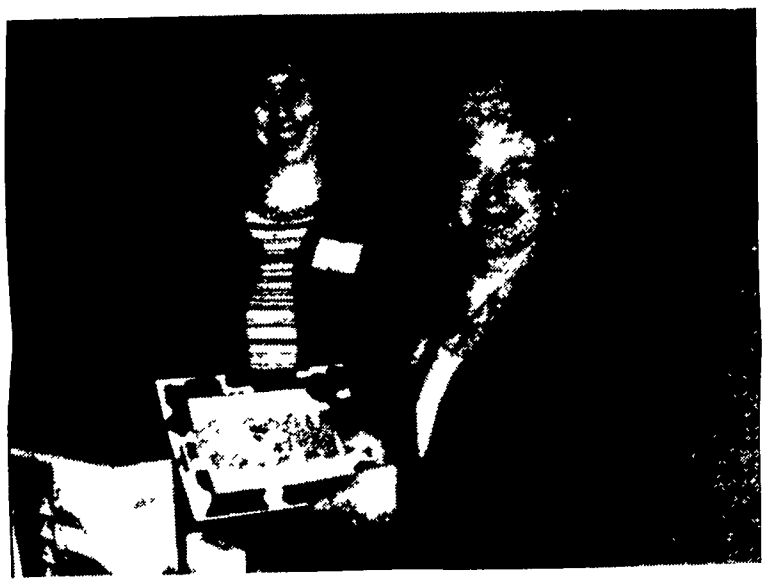
Behind The Scenes With Dairy Promotion

Donna Werley, PDPPS southeast coordinator, became involved with promotion when her daughter became Berks County Little Miss in 1992. Another daughter, Angela, was later crowned county and state dairy princess. "This is a wonderful program. It's our responsibility to promote what we produce," Werley said. She and her husband milk 70 cows in Hamburg.



Deanna Rose and Carolyn Weaver review books and props that portray scientific, accurate, and fun dairy information available for promotional use through the American Dairy Association Dairy Council.

Jan Harding, Junia Isiminger, and Charlene Ranck review materials distributed during the five district meetings.

LOU ANN GOOD

DENVER (Lancaster Co.) — County dairy princesses generally are the ones photographed and quoted by the media during dairy promotion events. But behind every successful dairy princess are county committees made up of volunteers who put in time and energy by coordinating events and doing the grueling work required to make promotion successful.

These unsung heros receive no pay and little recognition for the hours they donate to the dairy industry. Most share the same basis for their dedication: they are dairy farmers who believe in promoting the product they produce.

"The best promotion is done by people who promote their own product," said Junia Isiminger, assistant director for PDPPS.

Isiminger and executive director Jan Harding realize volunteers are busy people and strive to utilize the potential of every volunteer.

Harding said, "The purpose of PDPPS is to promote the consumption and sale of milk and dairy products to consumers and to create a better understanding between rural and urban people through one-on-one contact at the local event."

One of the ways PDPPS help dairy committees become better promoters is by holding day-long workshops in five districts throughout the state. Attendance ranges from a handful to about 100 at the workshops.

Volunteers learn practical advice such as food safety for serving cheese, milkshakes, and milk punches, promotional materials available, funding to cover promotional materials, working as a team, and record keeping.

Since its inception in 1956, the dairy princess program has changed to meet promotional demands. In addition to dairy princesses, those helping with promotion include alternates, male and female ambassadors,

(Turn to Page B15)

Alicia Risser, a former Lebanon County dairy princess, remained in dairy promotion by joining the committee. "I wanted to help dairy farmers by giving back to the industry," she said of her appreciation for representing them as dairy princess. Today, she, her husband, and daughter Abigail, 1, own heifers and work on a dairy farm.

Ginny Ranck is the mother of Lancaster County Dairy Princess Elisa Ranck. Ginny has been active with the county committee since her daughter served as a dairy darling and later as an ambassador. "This is a positive extension of individual dairy promotion," Ginny said. She shares dairy products and the nutritional message with guests at her family's Verdant Green Bed and Breakfast Dairy Farm, Paradise.

little misses, district coordinators, and county committees.

Dairy princesses must come from a dairy farm or dairy-related background, own dairy animals, or they or their parents must be employed in the dairy industry or an agribusiness that serves it. They must be single and between the ages of 16 and 24.

People to fill every position, from dairy princess to committee members are needed.

Anyone interested in dairy promotion as a county committee member or as a dairy princess, alternate, dairy maid, or ambassador can contact one of the PDPPS coordinators responsible for select areas of Pennsylvania: Bev Minor, southwestern, (724) 228-3339; Charlene Ranck, southeast, (717) 442-9008; Donna Werley, eastern, (610) 562-2070; Betty Reibson, northeast, (570) 924-3490; and Wanda Yoder, central, (717) 935-5317. Information is also available by contacting Jan Harding at (814) 226-8698 or Junia Isiminger at (814) 694-2661.

Ruth Ann Moyer said her dad instilled dairy consumption and avid promotion in her. Although she no longer lives on a dairy farm, she continues involvement with the dairy industry. A former DHIA tester, she helps with milking at a neighboring dairy farm. "When I had my second child, I lost contact with the dairy industry. I lost my identity. I was going bonkers because I missed the cows terribly," Moyer said. She joined the Bucks/Montgomery committee 10 years ago and is now treasurer. She said, "I feel it's important to educate people about where milk comes from and the nutritional benefits of milk."

Dale Smith, who has co-chaired the Lancaster County committee for three years and helps her husband with their 55-head Brown Swiss milking herd, said that she found out how important local committees were when her daughter Elizabeth was county dairy princess. She added, "A lot of farmers complain about milk prices but don't do anything to change it. This is a way to promote what we produce."

Sharon Nolan, who helps her husband with the Ayrshire/Holstein herd, said that she likes working with young people and spreading the word about dairy promotion. For the past three years, Noland has been active on the Chester County committee.

Sherry Bashore involves her children in dairy promotion starting at birth. Son Ry, 18 months, was born when his sister was Lebanon County's Little Miss. She and her husband milk cows. Sherry said that disappointment made her resolve to promote the dairy industry stronger when she ran for county dairy princess in 1987 and wasn't selected. "I decided to show everyone else that I can promote milk no matter what," she said.

Linda Hess, Lancaster, and her husband milk 325 Holsteins. For the past three years, Linda has worked with county promotion and has several daughters who served as dairy darlings and as ambassador.

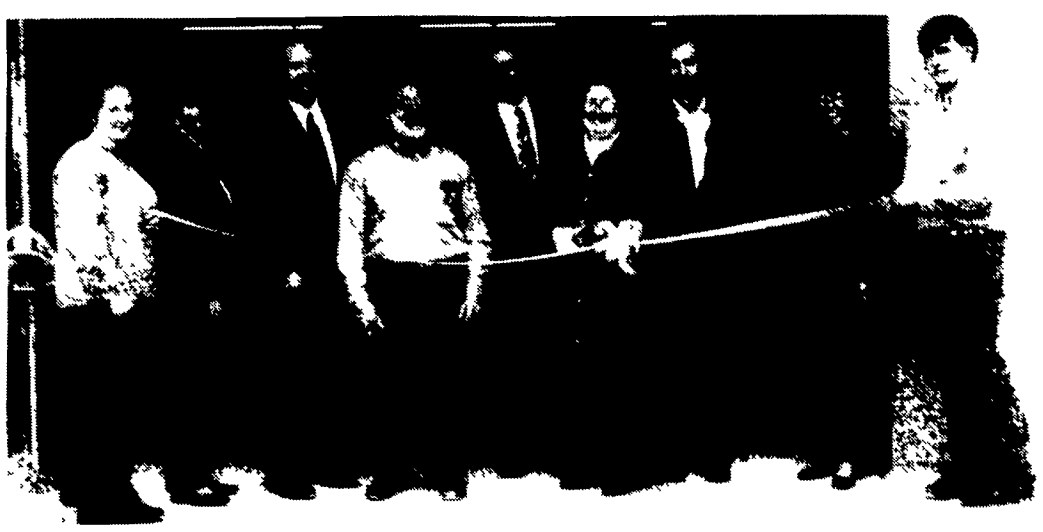
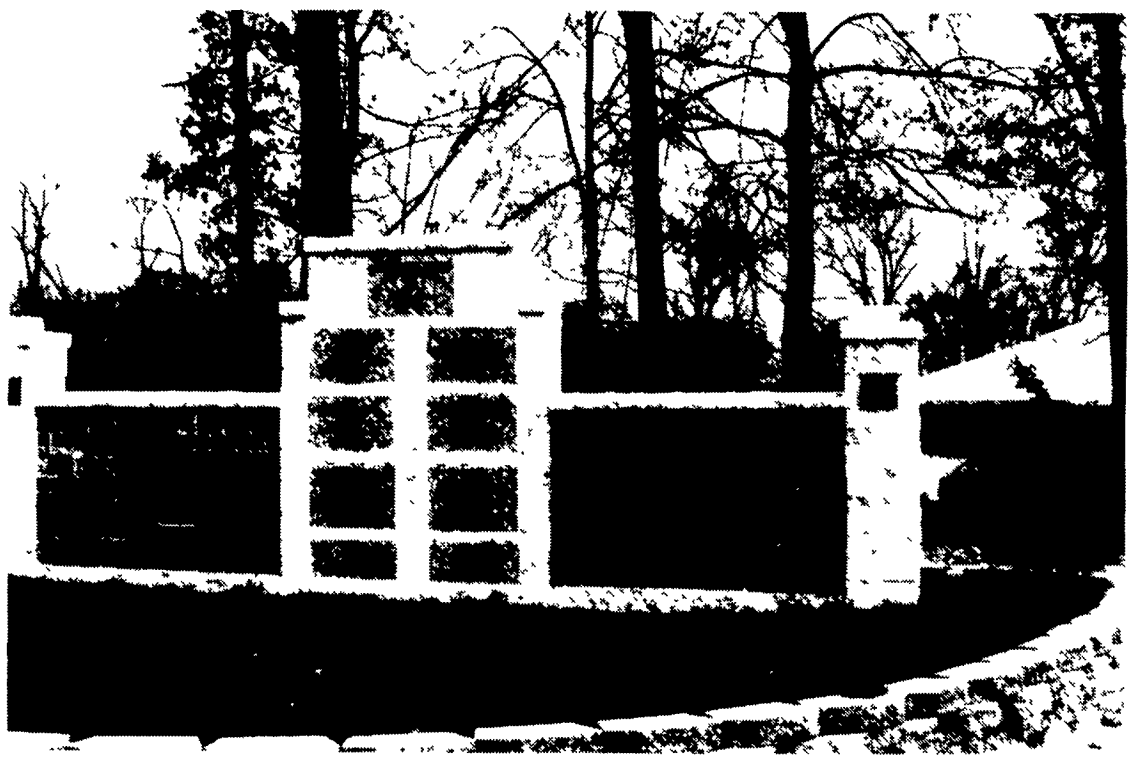
"I believe in the future of agriculture, with a faith born not of words but of deeds – achievements won by the present and past generation of agriculture..." That quote from the FFA creed, painted on the side of the 4-H Center's auction desk, helps outline the purpose of the new facility dedicated for the use and education of young 4-H'ers such as from left, Chad Menges, Matt Bankert and Cory Thompson.



Special guests for the 4-H Center's livestock center ribbon cutting ceremony were from left, Rijelle Kraft, 4-H County Council president; Dr. Michelle Rodgers, regional extension director; York extension agent and project coordinator Tim Beck; John Kann, 4-H Center caretaker; Rep. Ron Miller; Marge Runkle, 4-H Center board president; Roxanne Price, York extension director; and Cory Stump, 4-H County Council representative to the Center board.



An attractive, flower-fronted, stone-wall "honor area" pays tribute to the generosity of donors of both labor and funding to construct the York 4-H Center's livestock center.

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

BAIR (York Co.) – After some six-plus years in the building, thousands of dollars of fund-raisers and countless hours of volunteer labor, the livestock exhibition facility at the York County 4-H Center is officially opened.

A ribbon-cutting ceremony and open house held April 2 marked the official completion of the 70 x 140 feet, free-span pole building, designed to accommodate a variety of exhibits, livestock shows and sale events.

Among the dignitaries and special guests invited to take part in the official opening were Deputy Secretary of Agriculture Chris Herr, Jacobus state legislator Ron Miller-93rd District, and regional agriculture extension director Dr. Michelle Rodgers.

"We find ourselves in the peaceful possession of some of the finest parts of this earth," noted Deputy Secretary Herr in quoting the observation of President Abraham Lincoln, and emphasizing "a critical need to keep (agriculture) extension focused on its rural roots."

He praised the 4-H system, adding with pride that he is a product of the Lancaster County program, and expressing satisfaction in seeing former 4-H'ers "giving back" with donations of their time and dollars to benefit upcoming generations.

Tim Beck, extension agent and coordinator of the 4-H Center expansion project, welcomed a crowd of 4-H'ers and supporters gathered at a stone and brick "honor wall" entrance before the ribbon-cutting for the new facility. The honor wall pays tribute to financial supporters of the Center's addition who contributed at various donor levels. Beck especially praised the 50 to 75 volunteers who gave hundreds of hours and construction expertise through the course of the building project.

Cost of the center is tabbed at more than $286,000, funded largely by volunteer labor and donations of materials and cash valued at a combined nearly $210,000. The balance of the funding was generated through $45,000 in grants and numerous fundraisers, including the very first kiss-a-pig contest won by current state Senator Mike Waugh, Glen Rock.

The long, low design of the livestock facility is capped with an attractive trio of burnished gazebo tops giving it the flair of a classic county fair exhibit area, complete with outside horse-showing ring. Portable penning allows for the setting up inside of up to 90 individual 6 x 3 feet pens, which can be configured in groups of six with arched-gateway fronts for accessibility. Each can easily accommodate several pigs or sheep for shows and sales. A showing area in the middle of the facility, as well as a 25 x 25 feet portable show ring, offer flexibility for the needs of various shows and sales, and four sets of galvanized bleachers provide for spectator seating.

For housing larger livestock, the portable pens can be removed from the building, opening up the facility for up to 125 head of cattle to be tied around the outside. An outdoor, concreted washrack includes a 40 feet long center tie area, accessible for use on both sides. Six outside washracks are also available for swine washing. Additional features of the exhibition include perimeter fencing to contain any "escapees" from shows, a spacious, stoned parking area, restroom facilities, and forced air ventilation system.

The completion of the livestock facility marks the second major construction at the Center's wooded campus near the village of Bair and complements the original auditorium/kitchen/general purpose structure. According to agent Beck, discussions are already under way concerning possible additional housing, especially for dairy animals, and expanded parking space.

Organizations and groups interested in more information on the York County 4-H Center's facilities may contact the York County Agriculture Extension Office at 717-840-7408

Silage Spreaders with a Heritage of Quality

Lancaster Level-Flo has been the leader in non-motorized silage spreaders for more than 25 years. Each spreader is specifically designed to meet the needs of the individual operator.

Choose the spreader that best matches the equipment you use to fill your silo.

The Model 1030 Multi-Flo® is our standard silage spreader With a 9" gooseneck, it is designed for average capacity blowers and silo sizes.

The Model 1200 Multi-Flo® has a 12" wide gooseneck. Its larger size all but eliminates plugging problems, even when you blow in haylage It is especially helpful in larger silos

The BlueMax® is built for those who push high-capacity silo filling equipment to the limit. All parts of the BlueMax® subject to wear are made 25% heavier - and the stainless steel plate is twice as heavy. For strength, there are reinforcements all around Even our well-known non-binding hinge is heavier

For more information or the location of the Lancaster dealer nearest you, call today. 1-800-635-8708.

Hans Herr Chapter

Four members of Lancaster Mennonite High School's Hans Herr FFA Chapter attended the State Legislative Leadership Conference in the Grantville, Harrisburg, and Hershey areas in March. The conference trained students in how the state government works.

Students who participated included James Eby, son of Dennis and Ellen Eby in Gap; Paul Hostetter, son of James and Mary Louise Hostetter in Holtwood; Chad Hurst, son of George and Mary Hurst in Lititz; and Jeremy Ranck, son of James and Joan Ranck from Christiana.

Conference highlights included a legislative breakfast, where FFA members spent time socializing with senators and representatives. FFA members also had a chance to participate in a legislative simulation and learn more about the legislative process through workshops and hands-on activities. They also toured Milton Hershey High School, the Hershey Zoo, Hershey Chocolate Factory, and the historic state capitol.

Pa. State Grange Members Meet With Federal Legislators

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — About 100 Pennsylvania state Grangers visited with their federal legislators during the annual Washington Legislative Tour to discuss issues concerning agriculture and rural affairs.

Among the issues discussed during the recent visit with U.S. Congressmen and senators were dairy compacts, tax reform, health care, rural transportation. and education reform, among others.

The Pennsylvania State Grange, with more than 30,000 members in 450 Grange chapters across the commonwealth, is dedicated to improving the lives of rural Pennsylvanians through legislative action, grass-roots initiatives, community service, and offering member services such as financial planning, a credit union, and insurance programs.

Brenda Shambaugh, Pennsylvania State Grange legislative director, said the Washington tour presents an opportunity for individual Grange members to voice their position on issued being considered by federal legislators.

"The visit to Washington is also to speak out on behalf of the National Grange's Blueprint for Rural America," Shambaugh said. "The 10-point plan is designed to revitalize and enhance rural America in preparation for the new millennium. The blueprint is part of the National Grange's program called, 'A New Century, A New Grange".

The Grange believes Congress should authorize the formation of regional dairy compacts to provide a more stable pricing structure for producers and consumers. Reducing the number of milk marketing orders will lead to a more streamlined system of pricing, marketing and distribution of dairy products, as well as better regional accountability.

"Like New England's successful Northeast Dairy Compact, other dairy-producing regions can benefit from the establishment of similar compacts to promote cooperative pricing and marketing systems," Shambaugh said. "The Northeast Dairy Compact, which the Pennsylvania State Grange diligently helped to get created, is a proven success for our neighbors to the north, and we seek the same for Pennsylvania producers."

Shambaugh said the National Grange believes Congress should reform the federal tax system to assure preservation of family farms and businesses through the elimination of estate and capital gains taxes, and institute user taxes to offset costs of federal programs. National Grange officials presented statistics that show that it takes $3 in costs to collect $1 of estate tax following an individual's death.

"A new system is needed to assure that all wealth bears its just and equal payment to the government," Shambaugh said. "A family farm is a family business and plays a key role in the economic well-being of rural areas across America. The Grange also seeks immediate 100 percent deductibility for health insurance premiums paid by farmers and other self-employed individuals."

Another blueprint issue is the revitalization of rural schools through federal partnerships.

The National Grange supports using federal resources to revitalize rural schools by forming federal/state partnerships to renovate them. The revitalization project should include the provision of federal funds for rural school districts seeking assistance, and could include buying down interest rates on local bonds to finance school construction projects.

"Such partnerships should protect and retain local control, since traditionally, school construction and renovations have been the sole province of state and local governments," Shambaugh said. "Federal partnerships will help improve the health of rural economies, which are often dependent upon a quality learning environment."

Keystone Junior Beef Classic May 27-28

BUTLER (Butler Co.) – The Northwest Keystone Junior Beef Classic is scheduled at the Butler County Fairgrounds Memorial Day Weekend, May 27, 28. This will be the 15th year for the all-breed steer and heifer show that has drawn cattle and exhibitors from five states. It gives youth under 21 years of age and opportunity to enter competition drawn from a larger area than usually seen at the county fairs in which they compete during the summer

Exhibitors do not have to be 4-H or FFA members to participate. A friendly, helpful atmosphere, along with a very reasonable $12 entry fee, make this the perfect preview show for beginning showmen.

Preregistration by May 1 is encouraged for inclusion in the show catalog Late entries will be accepted but will have a $40 entry fee

The three day Memorial Day weekend allows Monday for rest and recuperation, since the open cattle show is scheduled on Sunday Saturday's activities begin with the Classic Showmanship Contest at 1 p m An educational program featuring the use of ultrasound equipment to analyze cattle will be held later Saturday afternoon, followed by a pizza party! A trade show featuring businesses that help sponsor the show will be open both days.

Sunday brings the real excitement when the steer and breeding classes are judged. In the heifer show, premiums will be paid for all classes, and trophys will be awarded for grand champion, reserve champion, and bred and owned. Registered heifers will show by breed and commercial classes will be held for unregistered heifers. A prize of $200 will be awarded to the supreme champion heifer of the show

The popular county steer classes will again be offered for any county (from any state) that has five or more preregistered steers County winners will win a jackpot of $10 times the number of steers shown in the class. Clubs and county groups can easily coordinate plans for the group to participate, and someone from each county will win the jackpot. Last year nine counties had enough entries to have their own jackpot class. There is also an all others division for those not having enough entries for the county class. The county champions will then compete with the all others champion for grand champion steer with a prize of $250, and reserve champion steer with a prize of $100.

The next planning meeting for the classic will be April 17 at 7:30 p.m. at the Mercer County Extension Center. Any interested persons are invited to participate.

Entry forms will be mailed to past participants. For more information or entry forms, contact your county extension agent or Beth Wingard, e-mail sunrise@usachoice.com or (814) 782-3992, or write Northwest Keystone Junior Beef Classic, c/o Bob Calvert, Mercer County Extension Office, P.O. House Passes Freedom To E-File Act

PARK RIDGE, Ill. — The House of Representatives recently passed the Freedom to E-File Act (S. 777), legislation which would allow farmers and ranchers to file paperwork with the USDA electronically.

"As in any other business, advanced technologies and the Internet are becoming increasingly common and important tools for American farmers and ranchers," said Larry Combest (R-Texas).

"This bill will allow farmers to spend more time in the fields with their crops rather than inside doing paperwork."

The bill requires the secretary of agriculture to establish an electronic filing and retrieval system to enable the public to file with USDA all required paperwork electronically. The bill would also allow the public access to information on farm programs, quarterly trade, economic and production reports and other information.

"Federal government agencies must move into the 21st Century and realize the possibilities of the technology revolution," said Rep. Ray LaHood (R-Ill.) who sponsored a similar House measure. "The IRS allows electronic filing, and this year over 34 million Americans will take advantage of the convenience of filing online. America's farmers should be afforded the same opportunity to ease their paperwork burdens when it comes to USDA forms. This legislation will do just that."

Advancement Teams to Visit Stone Fruit Growers

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) – Agriculture Secretary Samuel E. Hayes Jr. announced that teams of state and federal agriculture officials and inspectors will visit all Pennsylvania stone fruit growers over the next two months through the Plum Pox Virus Surveillance and Eradication Program.

"Sampling and testing stone fruit trees is the first step in eradicating the plum pox virus (PPV) in Pennsylvania," Hayes said. "As part of our continuing efforts to contain the newly discovered plum pox virus, we will test all orchards in the quarantine area twice during this year's growing season and all other stone fruit orchards across Pennsylvania at least once this year."

Hayes said the purpose of the visits by state officials and inspectors from the federal Animal Plant Health Inspection Service will be to learn from growers the locations, acreage, and other vital information about orchard blocks to be surveyed.

The information will be gathered by a Geographical Information System using aerial photography to produce maps for subsequent state Agriculture Department sampling teams

PPV affects stone-bearing fruits, including plums, peaches, nectarines, and apricots. The disease is characterized by round spots (pox) on fruit, leaves, stems, and seeds. It does not kill trees, but makes fruit unmarketable and drastically decreases yields.

PPV is transmitted from infected trees by aphids or by grafting. The disease does not affect humans. The strain detected in Pennsylvania is not transmitted in the fruit's seed.

First described in East Europe in 1910, PPV has spread to most countries on the European continent and to at least one country in South America. This is the first time PPV has been detected in North America.

Pennsylvania is a leading producer of fruit, ranking fourth nationally in peaches. Adams County is Pennsyl-vania's leading fruit-producing country. In 1999, the value of Pennsylvania's stone fruit production was approximately $25 million. Adams County accounted for $10 million of the total.

Last year, Gov. Tom Ridge released $2 million to contain and eradicate the plum pox virus in Pennsylvania.

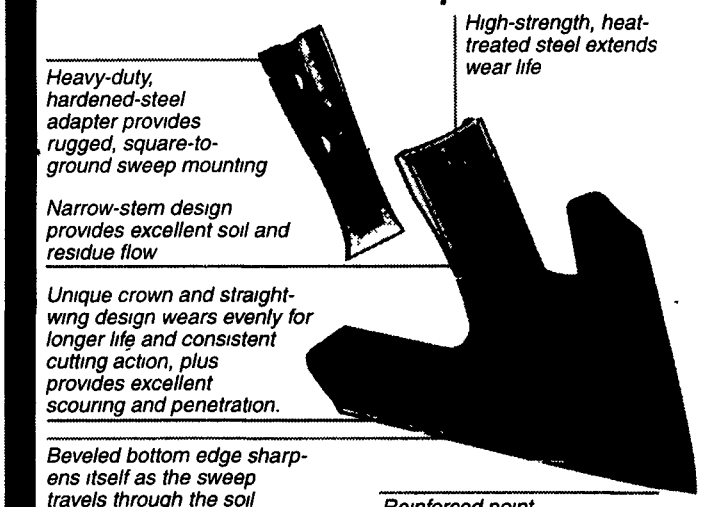
SOIL-MANAGEMENT SOLUTION

Lock into saving time and money with Doubl-Loc sweeps



High-strength, heat-treated steel extends wear life
Heavy-duty, hardened-steel adapter provides rugged, square-to-ground sweep mounting
Narrow-stem design provides excellent soil and residue flow
Unique crown and straight-wing design wears evenly for longer life and consistent cutting action, plus provides excellent scouring and penetration.
Beveled bottom edge sharpens itself as the sweep travels through the soil
Reinforced point increases wear life.

Why buy? Because they...
- are easier to install than typical bolt-on sweeps, and that saves you more time.
- have superior sweep retention which reduces routine maintenance and sweep and hardware replacement costs.
- feature the proven Tru-Width sweep advantages.

They're unique! Because the...
- heavy-duty, hardened-steel adapter and narrow stem ensure a superior fit.
- precision-made adapter and sweep ensure rugged, square-to-ground sweep mounting for excellent sweep retention, and that reduces replacement costs. And draft load is minimized to reduce fuel consumption.

- Handles a wide variety of material – slurry, gutter material, cow manure, even poultry litter.
- V-tank design delivers material to the auger fast.
- Heavy-duty round-core auger produces less drag.
- Double-acting hydraulic cylinder moves auger up and down to keep material flowing.
- Hydraulic gate and specially designed expeller give precise application control.
- Backed by a 10-year warranty against tank rust-through.

See us for all your spreader needs.

Thanks to axle improvements, engine placement and a sleek hood design, the MX Series Magnum can easily turn into 12 30-inch rows with all row crop tire configurations on true 60-inch tread settings

The new, single-piece, sculpted, cast iron Surround frame is the key to the enhanced capabilities and performance of these tractors It enables the MX Series Magnum to offer the first factory front duals, dramatically improving both traction and flotation By balancing the chassis, we've significantly reduced the amount of front ballast required And the frame easily accomodates mounted chemical tanks or loaders, allowing you to perform multiple applications

CLOSED GOOD FRIDAY APRIL 21, 2000

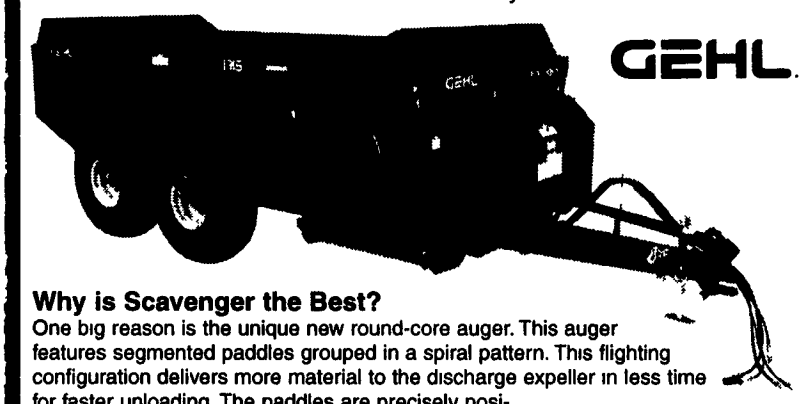
410 Bushel Rating with Hyd. Endgate Built to Last with a 12-Year Guarantee - See Binkley & Hurst Soon!



Why is Scavenger the Best?
One big reason is the unique new round-core auger. This auger features segmented paddles grouped in a spiral pattern. This flighting configuration delivers more material to the discharge expeller in less time for faster unloading. The paddles are precisely positioned to deliver more uniform feeding to the discharge expeller. This exceptional design breaks up and blends all types of manure.

The auger is hydraulically powered both up and down (unlike competitive units that use springs, gravity or fixed augers). This design provides more control to chop through bridged material or power down through heavy loads.

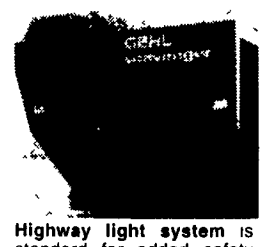
NEW Heavy Duty Design

Heavy-duty round-core segmented auger breaks up and blends manure with less chance of wrapping The specially-formed auger paddles are set at the precise pitch to maintain proper material flow to the discharge expeller

Outstanding Application Control.
Gehl's proven Varıflo™ discharge system has been made even better It's 33 percent wider on the Model 1315. On all new models the expeller assembly has been significantly strengthened. New square-tooth expeller paddles spread smoothly and evenly. You choose the rate you want, from heavy spring-time spreading to light top-dressing With Scavenger you have complete control right at your fingertips.

Model 1309 Single Axle
1005 Gallon, 134 cu. ft.

Model 1315 Tandem Axle
1818 Gallon, 243 cu. ft. with Rubber Rails



Highway light system is standard for added safety during road travel The light system connects to the tractor s 7-pin receptacle

BE Power Train Clutch and Gear Reduction

Model F

Features

- New style clutch. Fewer moving parts than ever before. Parts hardened & finish ground. No linkage to wear out
- Bolts directly onto most 8-22 hp engines. Can be used on engines up to 30 Hp
- 3.8-1 ratio for PTO hookups, engine RPMs 3130, and 540 at PTO
- Run live hydraulic with belt
- No need to cut off crankshaft, just bolt it on

Take a closer look. Designed for the farmer and/or whoever needs a clutch and gear reduction for P.T.O. and other drives. This BE Clutch and Reduction can easily be mounted directly on engines such as Honda, Kawasaki, Robin w/special pilot dia., Briggs-Vanguard and others. Some engines with larger pilot diameters need an adaptor (we make them), such as Kohler, Onan, small diesels and others.

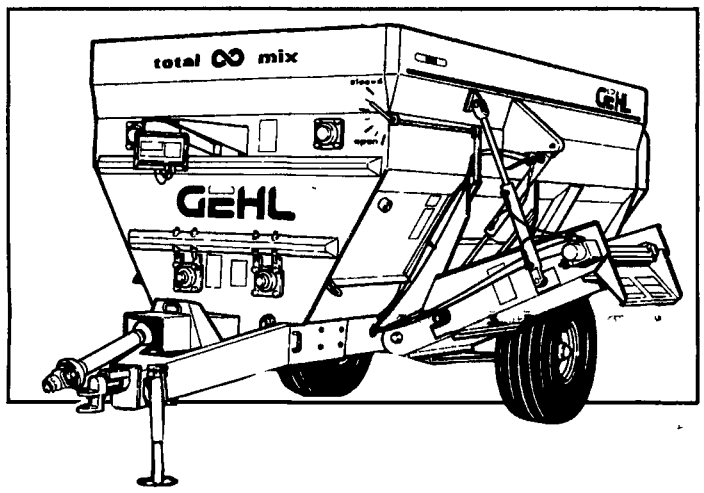
TMR "Total Mix" Mixer Feeders



"Total Mix" TMR mixer feeders let you mix more long-stemmed hay into your ration - up to 30% by weight depending on hay type and moisture content.

- "Hay - slicer auger" - Incorporates knife assemblies into the two bottom augers.
- Better mixing action - Four-auger design creates a double figure - 8 mixing pattern for fast and complete mixing of all feed ingredients.

BUSINESS ❖ NEWS

Caterpillar Marks 75h Anniversary

DEKALB, Ill. - A crystal ball my have been the only way to foresee all that would result when C.L. Best Tractor Co. and Holt Caterpillar Co. joined forces back in 1925, and few would have guessed that track technology would grow to serve so many industries.

As Caterpillar marks its 75th anniversary this year, the company is celebrating its development of track technology throughout the years and is particularly proud of its agricultural heritage.

"From the early days of steel tracks to current rubber-belted track technology, we have continued to improve and refine our equipment throughout the years," said Bob Strube, president, Caterpillar Agricultural Products Inc. "As Caterpillar Inc. celebrates its 75th anniversary, we're especially proud of our roots in agriculture and our leadership in bringing new technology to the farm today. We know our experience is recognized by farmers when it comes to track machines in agriculture."

As early as 1906, when the first Holt "Caterpillar" tractor with steel tracks was introduced, company engineers recognized the flotation benefits of the new technology.

By the time the two companies merged, they had collectively pioneered track tractors and the gasoline-powered tractor engine

"Non-adjacent fields and increasing miles of asphalt-paved roads caused a decline in the use of steel-track tractors over the course of time," Strube said, "Mobility between fields became a huge issue – farmers couldn't drive steel tracks down paved roads."

Caterpillar solved that problem with the introduction of the rubber-belted Challenger® 65 tractor in 1986. Farmers then had the benefits of tracks–flotation, traction and reduced soil compaction–plus the mobility needed to travel between fields over any type of road Since then, the Challenger tractor line has expanded to range from the versatile 175-PTO-horsepower Challenger 35 to the powerful 410-gross-engine-horsepower Challenger 95E

"From the beginning, Caterpillar has changed the way people think about farming. Our Challenger tractor line is the result of blending new technology with some of Holt and Best's original ideas that still make a lot of sense today," Strube said. "Their original agricultural tractors were based on a systems approach to solving problems and improving operational efficiency."

Strube lists diesel engines, front-end suspension and combined harvesting technology as examples of those enduring ideas. "Holt and Best also were well aware of the fundamentals of tracks–flotation and traction–and their importance in agricultural production," Strube said. "We continue to leverage those proven ideas with what Caterpillar has learned as a leader in other industries like construction, mining, forestry and power generation."

Caterpillar continues to invest in research as it sets the pace for others competing in the track technology field, Strube said, "We are constantly looking for ways to help farmers lower their per-acre costs and increase profits. Our customers keep us in business, and we intend to help keep them in business."

Caterpillar Inc. established an agricultural product group in 1990, with design and marketing responsibilities for the company's agricultural products. During the next five years, the Challenger tractor line was expanded to include both tillage and row-crop model track tractors. Caterpillar also developed the Versatile Flotation System (VFS) trailer, a rubber-track platform for grain carts, spray rigs and manure spreaders.

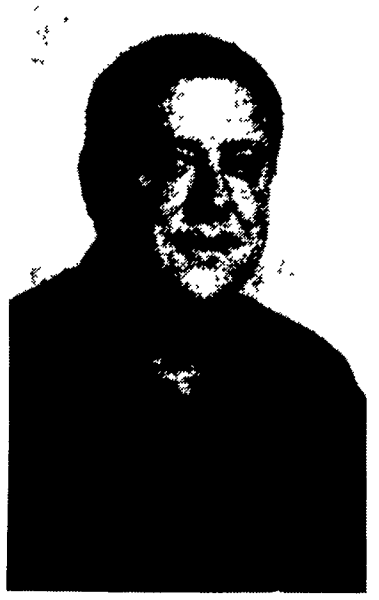
With the agricultural product group's continued growth, the company formed Caterpillar Agricultural Products Inc. as a wholly owned subsidiary in 1996 And in July 1997, Caterpillar entered into a joint venture with Germany-based Claas KGaA to manufacture and market Lexion® combines, which offer the highest production capacity of any combine in the world.

Today's product lineup includes seven Challenger tractor models and two models of the VFS trailer, all manufactured at the Caterpillar facility in DeKalb, Ill. Final assembly of the six Lexion combine models takes place in Omaha, Neb., where construction is under way on a new Caterpillar combine manufacturing facility. A variety of specialized material-handling products, including skid steer loaders, backhoe loaders, and telescopic handlers also serve the needs of the agricultural marketplace.

Chore-Time Hog Production Systems Names Five To Sales Team

Bryan Shive

Pete Shannon



Bill Shields

Mike Conroy

Brice Medlock

MILFORD, Ind. – Five individuals have been named to the sales and marketing team for Chore-Time Hog Production Systems, according to George Zimmerman, vice president and general manager.

Chore-Time Hog Production Systems resulted from merging the hog equipment products manufactured by Chore-Time Brock (CTB, Inc.) with products offered by Staco, Inc. Staco was acquired by CTB in 1998.

Bryan Shive has been appointed sales and marketing manager and is responsible for overall marketing and sales in the U S. and Canada. As a part of his responsibilities, Shive will also cover the company's western United States sales territory and British Columbia in Canada. He was recently marketing manager and engineering supervisor for Staco.

Peter Shannon is district sales manager for the eastern U.S. and Quebec, Canada. He was sales manager and production manager for Staco.

Bill Shields was named district sales manager for the company's south central U.S territory. He was formerly salesman for Sibley Industries, a subsidiary of CTB that manufactures heating equipment for hog and poultry production.

D. Michael Conroy will be the company's district sales manager for the north central U.S. as well as Manitoba, Alberta, and Saskatchewan in Canada. He previously was district sales manager for Chore-Time and specialized in the company's environmental systems as well as electronic ventilation controls.

Brice Medlock has been appointed district sales manager for the company's Great Lakes region as well as in Ontario, Canada, He also will continue as a district sales manager in the Great Lakes area for Chore-Time's poultry production systems business unit.

Novartis Seeds Introduces Soybean Seed Delivery

GOLDEN VALLEY, Minn. – In response to customer demands for more convenient soybean delivery option, Novartis Seeds, Inc. - Field Crops is supplementing its existing seed delivery choices with an innovative program for bulk seed delivery through select dealers. Called TruBulk, the program allows farmers to pick up bulk soybean seed directly from participation local outlets.

"With the TruBulk system, farmers can pull in to the dealership, quickly fill their gravity wagon and be on their way to the field with no unnecessary steps to load and unload containers," said Mark Schmidt, soybean product manager for Novartis Seeds.

Novartis Seeds dealer Ken Olson played a key role in developing the TruBulk program at his dealership in Turton, S D. As part of the program, Olson built four hopper bins with a combined storage capacity of 16,000 units of seed. He also installed a truck scale and conveyor system so farmers can load their trucks directly on the scale. Last year, Olson was one of 12 Novartis Seeds dealers who tested the program.

"By going to the TruBulk system, I cut customer loading time in half as compared to our 2,500-pound poly bag convenience Paks," Olson said. "For my customers, who race to seed hundreds of acres each year within a narrow planting window, those precious minutes translate into more acres in the ground every day."

About 80 percent of Olson's soybean customers opted for the convenient bulk delivery system last year. Other Novartis Seeds dealers participating in the 1999 pilot program reported equally high levels of customer use. Based on this positive response, 60 additional Novartis Seeds dealers invested in facility upgrades to accommodate the TruBulk system for 2000.

Novartis' Schmidt is not surprised at the system's growing popularity.

"Before testing the TruBulk system, we surveyed farmers to gauge interest in bulk seed delivery," Schmidt said. "More than 60 percent reported they were somewhat likely or very likely to use bulk seed. We listened to our customers, and last year initiated the industry's first bulk seed delivery program. Customer response to that pilot program was overwhelming, and now we are working with our dealers to bring this time-saving delivery option to more and more customers."

Novartis Seeds dealers must implement strict procedures before they are certified to carry the TruBulk seed in order to ensure the bulk product retains the company's purity and quality requirements. Dealers must build or convert one or more cone-bottom bins to store and handle NK Brand soybean seed safely, reliably and conveniently. Also required are let-down-ladders and belt conveyors to minimize possible seed damage. Finally, dealers and their employees must complete Novartis Seeds' training on storage and handling bulk seed.

"Dealers who offer TruBulk seed become an extension of our production facilities," Schmidt explained. "As a result, customers can be assured that bulk seed stored by a local dealer is the same high quality they find in each individually packaged bag of NK brand seed."

Center Releases Rural Access Guide

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) – The Center for Rural Pennsylvania has announced the release of the "Pennsylvania Rural Access Guide" on its Website at www.ruralpa.org.

The "Pennsylvania Rural Access Guide" is an extensive database that includes more than 350 sources of information on state, federal, and nonprofit grants, loans, and other assistance.

Rep. Sheila Miller, chairman of the Center for Rural Pennsylvania, said "Providing rural and small communities with the information they need to remain viable and healthy is at the heart of the Center for Rural Pennsylvania's mission. We redeveloped the original 'Rural Access Guide' and are introducing it as part of our Website so that more rural and small communities may take advantage of the wealth of information that the guide offers."

The Center first published the "Rural Access Guide" in 1994 as a booklet, which as a scaled-down version of a much larger database of information. The booklet included a sampling of state, federal, and nonprofit grants, loans and technical assistance programs and highlighted each program goals and objectives, funding availability, and contact information. The booklet was widely distributed throughout the state and was well received by rural residents, local government officials, and community organizations. However, anyone who wanted more information about other programs needed to contact the Center for Rural Pennsylvania for that information.

In this updated version of the guide, which was developed by the Center for Rural Pennsylvania and the Pennsylvania State Association of Township Supervisors, the entire database is immediately accessible through the Center's website at www.ruralpa.org.

"Being able to offer the entire database is a wonderful advantage of using the Internet," Miller said. "Another advantage is that the information can be updated more frequently and offered immediately to users, because the Center plans on updating the database at least once a year."

Recognizing that some rural residents may not have convenient access to the Internet, the Center for Rural Pennsylvania will also publish a booklet version of the guide for limited distribution. The booklet will be available in late spring.

While the "Rural Access Guide" includes an extensive listing of information, Miller offers that it should not be the final stop for information.

"It is a starting point from which rural and small town residents might more successfully begin their journey through the maze of financial and informational sources that are available at both the state and national levels," Miller said. "We encourage rural residents to take advantage of the programs offered in the 'Rural Access Guide' so that they might continue to answer the needs of their communities and organizations."

To use the "Pennsylvania Rural Access Guide," visit the Center for Rural Pennsylvania's website at www.ruralpa.org.

Highland Pen Sale in Bath April 29

BATH, N.Y – The annual Highland pen sale at the Empire Livestock barns here is fast approaching. Twenty seven animals are consigned to the sale this year. Animals range from weanling age up to bred cows, coming from New York, Pennsylvania and Canada

This will market the first time that animals have been brought in from Canada for the sale This is an opportunity to not only meet our local breeders and their fine registered cattle, but there will be a good wide range of genetic material available to choose from.

Highland breeders are a very friendly group and always happy to talk about this grande old breed, said Kevin MacCrea, Locustbrae Farm. "Many methods are used to raise cattle these days, and the Highland breed is no exception. This sale gives you a chance to talk to farmers from many walks of life, all with different ways of achieving their end results. We all want to preserve this breed and not change it in any way, but we all have methods that work for us."

The sale is Saturday, April 29, beginning at 1 p.m. Come early so that you have the chance to look the animals over and talk with the owners. For a copy of the sale catalog contact:

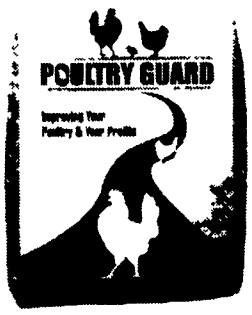
POULTRY GUARD™
LITTER AMENDMENT

New Poultry Guard™ Litter Amendment is a unique activated clay that delivers consistent ammonia control without the handling inconvenience associated with other poultry litter treatments

Unlike these other treatments, Poultry Guard Litter Amendment is easy and convenient to apply and needs no incorporation or activation Fewer application variables mean more consistent performance In addition, Poultry Guard can be applied up to five days before bird set, whenever it's convenient for the grower



Using Poultry Guard Litter Amendment Is As Simple As...

Apply
Simply spread over poultry litter.
- No incorporation
- No moisture activation
- No complicated instructions for heating and ventilation in conjunction with application

Bird Set
Poultry Guard can be applied when it's most convenient, up to five days before bird set.
- No application timing headaches between clean out and bird set
- No last minute application after equipment has been lowered

Control Ammonia
Poultry Guard will deliver immediate and long-term ammonia control and give birds a healthier growing environment.
- No more dangerously high levels of ammonia to stunt growth

You be the judge! We are confident this litter amendment will improve your poultry and your profits.
